

BARE DARING PLOT TO MURDER HUERTA ON NEW YEAR'S EVE

ALLEGED ATTEMPT TO ASSASSINATE DICTATOR IS NIPPED IN NICK OF TIME.

ENVOY LIND RETURNING

Cruiser Hastens to States With Special Diplomatic Representative While Situation Grows More Critical.

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)

Mexico City, Dec. 31.—An alleged plot to assassinate Provisional President Huerta during the New Year's reception was frustrated by the arrest today of two Mexicans in a house of the suburban town of Campo Florida.

The secret police are said to have discovered that the plotters had planned to enter the home of General Huerta at the same time as the officials and others had arranged to come and offer their New Year's greetings.

Lind on His Way.
Washington, Dec. 31.—Rear Admiral Fletcher reporting the departure of the Chester from Vera Cruz, left today for Tampico, where the American envoy at Ship Island opposite Gulfport. From Ship Island, Mr. Lind will proceed to Tampico on a revenue cutter.

Admiral Fletcher also reported the departure of the battleships Connecticut and Kansas from Vera Cruz for Tampico. The gunboat Wheeling is on her way from Tampico to New Orleans and the German cruiser Bremen left Vera Cruz for the former port.

Conditions Discouraging.

Belated diplomatic dispatches from Acapulco were said at the state department today to indicate considerable discouragement. The national bank there is returning deposits and it is believed this may enable the military authorities to collect forced loans from individuals. Spanish business houses are planning to close and to place their property under the protection of the American consulate.

A dispatch from Chihuahua says General Villa has announced that the expulsion of Japanese from Chihuahua is not being ordered and it is not being considered.

Wilson May Meet Lind.

President Wilson received official advice today that John Lind, his personal representative to Mexico, had left Vera Cruz on the scout cruiser Chester which probably would arrive off here tonight. There is possibility of the release of General Huerta, the president will go aboard the revenue cutter Winona, recently placed at his disposal here, and meet Mr. Lind when the Chester arrives.

The president was not inclined to discussing the release of General Huerta, but authorized the statement that the visit was of no special significance and merely meant that the president's representative desired to communicate more fully than he could by cable.

President's Attitude.

Mr. Wilson gave the impression that there was nothing here to indicate a crisis in Mexican affairs or that a new diplomatic move was contemplated.

The president, however, recently has given much thought to the Mexican problem. In view of this fact there is reason for believing that a more definite understanding of the course that the president desires Mr. Lind to pursue in the immediate future will be reached.

The president today motored to the Mississippi Country Club and played eighteen holes of golf as though he had not a care in the world. His health is apparently improving daily.

Big Ransom for Terrazas.

Chihuahua, Mex., Dec. 31.—$250,000 in gold has been agreed upon by General Villa as the ransom he will accept for the release of Luis Terrazas, son of the rich Mexican land owner who has been imprisoned here for five weeks on the charge that he had supported Huerta.

The money is to be paid by Terrazas, senior, who has been negotiating at El Paso for the release of his son. The prisoner is to be brought to the border under safe conduct. The women members of the Terrazas family have gone to the border.

Troop Train Dynamited.

Vera Cruz, Mex., Dec. 31.—A federal troop train was blown up by dynamite today one hundred and seventy miles north of Mexico City on the main line of the Inter-Oceanic railway connecting the federal capital with the coast.

Wires Torn Down.

Vera Cruz, Dec. 31.—The telegraph line along the coast was cut according to advices received at the federal headquarters here. No further details were available this morning except that traffic had not yet been resumed.

Resume Fighting.

Presidio, Tex., Dec. 31.—The rebel forces resumed their fighting against the federal army at Ojinaga, Mexico, this morning. The federal forces have been driven from the town and the rebels were fast losing ground.

Reports were that Gen. Pascual Orozco and Gen. Ynez Salazar, commanders of federal volunteers, had arranged to cross to the American side in case the federal army is utterly routed.

Federal deserters said only the fear of being shot by their own officers prevented many federal soldiers from rushing across the river. They said their losses in dead and wounded had been heavy.

Many Dead and Wounded.

Estimates of a probable number of dead and wounded were based on what the refugees said. A federal deserter said 200 or 300 of their number had been killed in the first attack of the rebels and that the wounded were too numerous to count.

Three other federal deserters said that most of the soldiers had not been paid in months and were waiting a chance to desert.

"They've all got their eyes turned to the American side," said one ragged and ruddy soldier who was eating rations given him by an American.

Mr. Lind's Departure.

Mexico City, Dec. 31.—The departure from Mexico of John Lind, personal representative of President Wilson, caused very little comment here. Mexican officials profess to attach no importance to Mr. Lind's movements, which they say long ago ceased to concern them.

Villa at Chihuahua.
Juarez, Mex., Dec. 31.—Gen. Francisco Villa arrived here today from Chihuahua. His purpose was to be in a better position to direct by telegraph the rebel operations against Ojinaga.

BRYAN KEEPS SILENT ON MEXICAN POLICY

Secretary Returns from Florida Vacation and Gives Attention to Mexican Reports.

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)

Washington, Dec. 31.—Secretary Bryan back from his holiday in Florida early at his desk today going over Mexican dispatches which accumulated during his absence. Private reports would not discuss John Lind's forthcoming conference with President Wilson at Pass Christian, Mississippi. In official circles it was suggested that some new announcement regarding the policy of the United States toward Mexico might be made after Mr. Lind's report to Mr. Wilson.

PLUMBERS REQUIRED TO HAVE LICENSES

Prohibited from Engaging in Their Occupation in This State Without License After Today.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)

Madison, Wis., Dec. 31.—In Milwaukee on Tuesday, Jan. 6, will be given the first state examination for the licensing of plumbers in Wisconsin. The examination will be conducted by the board of plumbing examiners of the state board of health, in the trade school for boys, Hanover and South Pierce streets, Milwaukee. The examining board consists of J. E. Robertson, Milwaukee, chairman; Thomas H. Ferguson, Madison, secretary; and W. G. Kirchoffer, Madison, engineer.

All journeymen and master plumbers taking the examination are required to file application with the plumbing division of the state board of health, Madison, on blanks furnished by that body, with the fee of $2 for journeymen and $10 for master's license. Candidates must come equipped with solder, tools, net, and material will be provided by the board. Both written and oral tests and practical demonstrations will be given.

Since the new state plumbing law became effective Oct. 2, 1912, nearly 2,000 Wisconsin plumbers have complied with its provisions and secured state licenses. Those doing business without state license are doing so in violation of the law and are liable for $100 fine and imprisonment for not continuing in business. Of the 2,000 who have complied, approximately 350 have taken out licenses as journeymen, 1,500 as masters. There are about 350 plumbing shops in Wisconsin; 550 have taken out licenses as master plumbers and over 1,000 as journeymen plumbers.

According to this law, these 1913 licenses expire today, so that it was necessary to demand renewals for 1914. The board of health is daily receiving applications for renewal. Notwithstanding the initial license fee covered only the short-term period from Oct. 2 to Dec. 31, 1913, and renewals had to be made together with the payment of $2 for journeymen for the initial fees and renewal that amount for renewal.

This a plumber who might seek to evade payment of two fees, the initial and the renewal, by waiting until 1914 to apply for a license, finds he cannot secure it without payment of the two fees at the same time. Penalty for operating without a license is a fine from $10 to $100 or imprisonment not exceeding thirty days. The formulation of the plumbers' code is about completed.

He used a .32 calibre revolver. The prisoner is a Lithuanian.

EIGHT ARE KILLED IN TENEMENT FIRE; FAMILIES HOMELESS

Fire Starts From Ground Floor Cutting Off Escape—Fifteen Hurt Jumping From Fire Escape.

New York, Dec. 31.—Eight persons, five men and three women, were killed in a tenement house fire in the crowded East Side district today. Fifteen persons were injured, four seriously, by jumping from fire escapes.

The fire started on the ground floor, cutting off escape by the stairway. An hour before dawn the tenants in the house were aroused by the cries of persons in the streets. Finding escape by the stairway cut off, they crowded on the fire escape. The calm waited for the firemen to raise ladders. A few made their way over the roofs of adjoining buildings.

Mrs. Essie Kaplan, 55 years old, a widow. Barnie Kaplan, 18, her son. Louis Kaplan, 16, another son. Samuel Cohen, 44. Isaac Weisberg, 60. Mrs. Pearl Weisberg, 50, his wife. Gussie Mazzini, 19 years old. Israel Golden, 35.

The Mazzini girl, after assisting her father and mother to get down, returned to her room, where she was found dead. The bodies of Mrs. Kaplan and her sons and Samuel Cohen, a tailor, who occupied a room with them, were found on the fifth floor. Israel Golden was found dead in his bed on the fifth floor. The Weisbergs were in their apartment on the third floor.

More than thirty families were made homeless. Many fled half clad in the biting early morning air and were taken care of by neighbors. All indications were that the fire was started by a faulty chimney and an investigation was begun.

WEATHER FORECAST
Cloudy and unsettled with probable snow flurries. No change in temperature.

RING OUT WILD BELLS.

Ring out, wild bells, to the wild sky,
The flying cloud, the frosty light:
The year is dying in the night;
Ring out, wild bells, and let him die.
Ring out the old, ring in the new,
Ring, happy bells, across the snow,
The year is going, let him go,
Ring out the false, ring in the true.
Ring out the grief that saps the mind,
For those that here we see no more;
Ring out the feud of rich and poor,
Ring in redress to all mankind.
Ring out a slowly dying cause,
And ancient forms of party strife;
Ring in the nobler mood of life,
With sweeter manners, purer laws.
Ring out the want, the care, the sin,
The faithless coldness of the times;
Ring out, ring out my mournful rhymes.
But ring the fuller minstrel in,
Ring out the false pride in place and blood,
The cant of slander, and the spite;
Ring in the love of truth and right,
Ring in the common love of good.
Ring out old shapes of foul disease;
Ring out the narrowing lust of gold;
Ring out the thousand wars of old,
Ring in the thousand years of peace.
Ring in the valiant man and free,
The largest heart, the kindliest hand;
Ring out the darkness of the land,
Ring in the Christ that is to be.
—Tennyson.

THE OLD YEAR.

Like an old garment which has served us well, we lay aside tonight the old year and with a feeling of regret say "good-bye."
There is something significant about the passing of a year. It closes up the ledgers, in all kinds of accounting, and fills every mind with hope that the balance may be on the right side, but the first week of the new year always contains many surprises, for inventories show frequently that capital has been impaired.
The first half of January, of any year, records more failures than any other period because it is the season of universal stock taking. The month when dividends are either paid or passed, and when investors find out where they are at.
This issue of the Gazette contains the inventory of the city for the year nineteen hundred and thirteen, perhaps not complete in every detail, but sufficient to show that substantial improvements have contributed freely to the history of the year.
No failures have marred the commercial life, and our industries are in prosperous condition. While the city shows no rapid growth, many new homes occupied by their owners, indicate that we are on the upward climb.
The commission plan of government continues to make good, and while much remains to be accomplished our financial condition shows marked improvement, and public morality reflects a more enlightened public sentiment.
No great calamity has visited us as a people, and the general health has been so good that an ambitious physician might have cause for complaint.
Our schools and churches have maintained their reputation, and the old year closes its history with many pleasant memories, and many causes for gratitude. Thus we face

THE NEW YEAR

to be ushered in tonight at midnight with old time greetings, and glad anticipations. The clean, white pages of the new year book will be open tomorrow morning, and whether we will or no every one of us will be recording history.
That's one of the peculiarities about the flight of time. Every passing day is a drama, and every life represents an actor in the rapidly moving panorama. The year upon which we are about to enter will be no exception to the rule, and it is a mighty good plan, while the stage is being set, to decide what part we will attempt to play during the year.
The life that plans to a purpose and works to accomplish it, will have the satisfaction of knowing, long before the year closes that planning and working to a purpose, is always profitable.
The stage is crowded with actors every day, who are simply echoes, and the close of a year finds them no better off than at the beginning.
A few good resolutions and a little careful planning, is always a good way to start a new year. Try it, and results will be surprising in the retrospect of 1914.

Senator LaFollette declares that the currency bill will create a bank monopoly which will be a menace to the country. The senator's judgment on questions of finance, is on a par with his knowledge of water transportation, as outlined in his "Seamen's bill," now pending in the senate. The provisions of this bill would bankrupt every lake and river-going craft, because the crew and equipment demanded is proportionately the same as for the ocean liners. It bears all the earmarks of a land-lubber aspiring to be president in 1916. His criticism on the new currency bill should be considered a compliment.

The attempt of the government to settle the copper mine strike will be a failure, because there is really nothing to settle. The strikers represent but a small minority of the workmen who have never gone out, and these men are as much opposed to recognizing the Western Federation of Miners as are the mine owners, and this recognition is the only issue. The copper mines have been running for half a century and there is no reason why a western labor organization should attempt to influence the workmen. If Moyer, the western agitator, is wise, he will go back home and attend to his own business.

Another question has come up. After the house of representatives has voted to purchase a lavalliere as a wedding present for the president's daughter, how many members sneaked a look at the dictionary to find out what it was?

The patriotic New Yorker who thinks Tammany will now close its headquarters and go to work for a living undoubtedly has another guess coming.

W. T. Stead, whose ghost is appearing in London seances, evidently left behind his knowledge of grammar with the rest of his earthly possessions.

That sound of distant gaiety is undoubtedly Yuan Shai KaKi chuck-ling to himself because he has no big sister republic to the north of him.

The British rear admiral is to rank the American rear admiral at Vera Cruz. Will congress still refuse to make some vice admirals?

It's still a little early to buy stock in the American Telephone and Telegraph company in the hope that the government will dissolve it.

The man who declined to prosecute his wife on the charge of cutting to wound him must be well acquainted with the better part of valor.

The outlook for a merry new year Mexico is like life. Few seem to want to leave it in spite of the fact that it's sure death to stay.

Anyway, if Connie Mack should decide to retire, he has enough pen-nants to enable him to go into the sofa pillow business.

No investigation is necessary to convince visitors in New York that the taxicab drivers there are Tammany men.

Why shouldn't the senators want congress to adjourn? By going home they can collect all that government mileage.

is only slightly enhanced by General Rosalie Jones' intention to start another like to Albany.

It did not need that flood to convince the average Texan that water is more fatal than whiskey.

Either Huerta's backbone or his campaign is holding out. He says President Wilson insulted him in his last message to congress.

General Villa is now confiscating Mexican estates. Probably that's all there is left to confiscate.

ing meeting Tuesday afternoon at the du Chien to spend the holiday vacation.

Mrs. Will Worthing and Miss Worthing of Calville were guests of Mrs. Kate A. Doolittle on Tuesday.

Mrs. M. J. Newman returned Tuesday to her home in Monroe after ascending a few days with her mother, Mrs. P. W. Kilwine, who fell on Christmas night, injuring herself quite badly. She is quite comfortable at this time.

CROWDS MAKE MERRY AS OLD YEAR DIES

Advent of Youthful Nineteen-Fourteen Occasion for Joyous Festivities in Janesville.

Old Nineteen-Thirteen is dying tonight. His passing is not marked as a time for sorrow and he is allowed to pass away without a tear. The reception to the newcomer, Master Nineteen-Fourteen promises to be an enthusiastic one in Janesville, and may through will be heard as the bells and whistles sound at midnight, to join in the jollifications.

Over at the Auditorium the local Elks are holding a monster celebration tonight to commemorate the practical completion of the new bridge at Milwaukee street. There's fun aplenty when the Elks put on a big stunt and this will be one of the big drawing cards of New Year's Eve.

The libraries of the city offer special attractions in honor of the New Year's advent. At the Myers Theatre Frank Winninger and his musical comedy troupe are playing to packed houses.
The show tonight will be a big attraction. Mr. Winninger and the members of his company are planning to visit the carnival and join in the holiday spirit.

At the Apollo and the motion picture houses attractive holiday programs are offered.

The big New Year's Eve dance is the Railroad fireman's ball at Assembly hall. To the lovers of the terpsichorean art this will be a big attraction.
Saloons will close promptly at eleven o'clock according to Chief of Police Ransom, and favors will not be extended beyond the regular time.

The local restaurants are preparing fine menus and laid in large stocks of provisions today, preparatory to the raid of the hungry celebrators tonight.
Many tables have been reserved and business will be rushing.

There will be watch parties at many of the churches and special exercises with an address by the Rev. Boag of Beloit will be held at the Methodist church.

While unusual liberty is allowed on New Year's Eve and while joyous spirits run rampant, tomorrow will be a day for sober reflection and a day for new resolutions.

Miss Rose Partridge, a trained nurse from the Chicago health department, is the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Guy Cole, at the Jeffris flats.

Miss Rose Mandel of Chicago is the New Year's guest of Mrs. David Holmes.
C. I. Miller, former manager of the Bell phone company in this city, at present residing in Madison, is spending the day with Janesville friends.
A. A. Johnson, who spent Christmas week at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Guy Cole, left this morning for Eau Claire, before returning to his home in Chicago.

ELLA ALBRECHT WEDDED TO OSCAR ROEHL TODAY

ents. The bride will wear a wedding gown of white and will carry a bridal bouquet. Miss Emma Albrecht, sister of the bride, will be maid of honor and of the groom, will be best man.

vicinity of Footville and have a wide circle of friends who wish them happiness in beginning the New Year as

THE TURKISH BATH

You cannot be healthy unless you sweat and throw off the bodily poisons. The ordinary sweat is debilitating. But the Electric Light is a tonic heat, it effectually destroys disease germs, and the rub-down following removes the waste matter which the skin throws off. This electric light Turkish Bath is a boon to sufferers from liver, stomach, kidney, bladder troubles, insomnia and nervousness, asthma and catarrh. It is a great body builder because it quickens the circulation and oxygenates the blood perfectly. It promotes nutrition, building up nerve and muscular tissue. For brain workers it is one of the surest roads to efficiency.

Look yourself over at the beginning of this New Year. Is your health what it ought to be? If not, here is the place to begin to reform.

Good-Bye
To 1913
An Open Hand of Welcome
To 1914

Today we turned over our last announcement of store news for the year with the satisfaction of a task well done. The achievements of the past year have been greater than the most sanguine expectations would have led us to anticipate. But we have a higher aim in our merchandising than per cent of increase—the past year has established a confidence in our daily announcements, a dependence in our honesty purpose that's more gratifying to us and valued above dollars and cents.
Many years ago we learned our lesson, that it was good storekeeping to advertise truthfully, to take our money to the home markets, and to keep only the finest grades of merchandise, and in obedience to the natural law of the survival of the fittest the Big Store has grown and grown, and grown—and we expect to justify still greater progress for the year 1914.

"THE WRECK"

Synopsis

Visiting his old friend Hamilton, Carlyle, the Railroad President, sees Hamilton's son, Richard and is so favorably impressed with him that he offers him an opening in the railroad business. Carlyle's own son, Herbert, is a ne'er-do-well-at college. Herbert, at this time, is pressed for debts and writes home for money. His father refuses his request. Herbert then communi-cates with Genevieve, his pretty, young stepmother. She dares not tell her husband, since he has already refused the boy the money, so she confides in Richard. Herbert makes a secret call home and is assured by Genevieve that she will try to get the money. While he is talking to her, Carlyle is heard to be coming, and Herbert has to dash from the room. Carlyle demands to know whom Genevieve was talking to, and his suspicious jealousy is aroused against Richard, whom he already suspects, when she is unable to answer his question.

Genevieve meets Richard and tells him that her son wishes to meet him that evening to get the money. Carlyle witnesses the interview, and is now sure that his worst suspicions are justified. Carlyle goes to the bridge that evening and accuses Richard. Enfurated against him, he seizes him by the throat and pushes him into the water. He is seen doing this by John Squires, a surly bully, who has been dismissed from the railroad. When Carlyle is sneaking back home, Squires steps out in front of him and forces him to give him back his job. Herbert comes at this time, to look for Richard. Seeing his father and being questioned by him as to his presence there, the boy tells the reason of his desiring to see Richard, and the father realizes that he has killed an innocent man.

The Railroad President takes a trip West with his son to get away from the scenes of his sorrow.
John Squires is driving the express. Intoxicated, the engineer fights with the stoker and tries to throw him from the cab window.
While this goes on the express speeds towards a runaway engine.
A terrific head-on collision follows, in which both the engine and the express are entirely demolished. Hundreds lose their lives.
Carlyle searches frantically for his son and finds him among the deads. He realizes now that a just retribution has been meted out to him.

graph production will be the fea-

Why I Advertise

Because it enables me to do a larger volume of business. Why are your prices less than other Dentists? Some say to me. Because, while a few people are willing to pay high fees, investigation and experience proves that there are four times as many people willing to save their precious teeth, providing the cost is not too great. By making the excellence of my work equal to any, I have been able to profit my patients greatly during the past ten years.

ASSEMBLY HALL WAS SPRINGTIME BOWER FOR DANCING PARTY

ONE OF THE MOST SUCCESSFUL DANCES AND RECEPTIONS EVER HELD IN CITY.

IS DELIGHTFUL AFFAIR

Wonderful Decorations and the Best Dance Music Played in Janesville in Years Charm Guests.

What was one of the handsomest and most delightful ever held in this city was held last evening at Assembly hall, with Mr. and Mrs. Charles Muggleton, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas O. Howe and Miss Hazel Howe as hosts. Fully five hundred of the invited guests attended the reception which was held during the first hour of the evening and many stayed until almost four o'clock this morning when the last strains of the music of the wonderful orchestra's "Home Sweet Home" reminded the dancers that there was a tomorrow. The hall had been transformed into a bower of springtime. Edward Amerpohl, who had this in charge, performed a miracle with southern sinuities, dainty white Cape flowers and the golden Kum Quats, peeping from beneath the vines it was a wonderful sight. Six large lights, enclosed in a lattice effect, with a large one in the center of the hall gave their lantern-like glow, peeping through the vines, while each tiny individual light was encased in an oriental poppy of yellow and white. The side walls and orchestra stand were made beautiful with dainty southern pines, tiny Christmas trees, which seemed, while handsome rugs, cozy seats and divans, with two large pillars on which were bouquets of southern pines and red and white flowers. The guests were placed to advantage at the entrance where Mr. and Mrs. Muggleton, Mr. and Mrs. Howe and Miss Howe greeted their guests.

Even the balcony had come in for its share of decoration and here were found card tables, with handsome electric lamps, rugs, cozy chairs and a chance to view the dancing through below, through the leaves of the music. The floor was covered with a most pleasing effect. The supper room was enclosed in lattice work, with the southern sinuities, the Kum Quats, which made the guests feel that they were in a most delicious and refreshing refreshment were served. Chicken salad, sandwiches, diminutive mince pies, delicious coffee and condiments were served. The guests were placed to advantage at the entrance where Mr. and Mrs. Muggleton, Mr. and Mrs. Howe and Miss Howe greeted their guests.

Mr. Hatch had arranged his music carefully and his musicians were all carefully selected men, the instruments played—the piano, base violin, cello, first and second cornet, xylophone and drums, slide harmonium, first violin, second violin, first and second violins, flute and harp—blended into one of the sweetest harmonies imaginable and a surprise to many who have been accustomed to music in the past. The orchestra leader could assemble such an array of musicians.

Among the guests present from out of the city were: Mr. and Mrs. Johnson and Walter Johnson of Oak Park, Illinois; Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Bucklin, Minneapolis, Minn.; Mr. Harrison, Chicago; Mr. Palmer, Portana; Leslie, Harper, Madison; Miss Willa McGiff, Springfield, Ill.; Mrs. Parsons, Cleveland, Ohio; Mr. and Mrs. Anderson, Racine; Mrs. Agnes McNeil, Beloit; Miss Della Seibt, Beloit; Mr. and Mrs. Louis Zinke, Chicago; and Donald Jeffers, Chicago.

Some Reflections and Appreciations

About one million and a half cigars were manufactured in town during the year. Over thirty-five employed, $28,000 paid in wages; the cost of boxes made in town, about $2,000. No other items included. Considering the cost of production, and the high cost of living to the cigar maker, practically all this was distributed among the local dealers. You could double this amount easily by giving home industry the preference. It's the diversified industrial affairs that help make this town hold its own during a depression. There are better cigars made in Janesville than in any other city of its size. "El Marko" and "Reliance" are some of them. Those that smoked them surely had as good or better smoke than any of the imports. It will be our effort to maintain or excel in quality if possible to further merit this patronage. With best wishes for the New Year

PHYSICIANS SILENT ON EUGENICS LAW; OFFICERS ELECTED

DR. J. W. KIETHLEY OF BELOIT SUCCEEDS DR. VAN KIRK AS PRESIDENT.

TALK CONTRACT PRICES

Committee is Appointed to Conduct Investigation Into Practice Once Tabooed by County Society.

On the theory of the old proverb that silence is golden, it may be deduced that Rock county physicians are ready and willing to abide by the new eugenics law which provides for a medical examination for every male who takes out a marriage license. The marriage office in that district was notified of the affair and a deputy marshal on Saturday arrested Hauge.

It is charged by the federal officials that Hauge and his associates sent circulars through the mails to the effect that they had lands in Michigan and Wisconsin to sell at very low prices. A number of persons, it is said, paid over a large amount of money, which was discovered that the land was not owned by Hauge or his associates.

POULTRY SHOWS ARE MOST SUCCESSFUL

Officers of Poultry Association Hold Successful Exhibits Annually During Last Six Years.

The Southern Wisconsin Poultry Association was organized January tenth, 1908, and the first exhibition was held at the Auditorium between the gates of January fourth and ninth, in 1909. The association was incorporated on November eleventh, in the year of 1911.

Every exhibition that the organization has held has been successful and the non-assessing association and success has been gained by the efforts of its officers, who take great pride in keeping this city to the front among the poultry fairs of the state. The present officers are: William McVicar, president; W. H. Ashcraft, vice president; J. D. King, secretary; Edward Amerpohl, treasurer; directors—W. F. Carle, W. H. Ashcraft, C. E. Hevrons, Alex. Buchanan, O. S. Morse, Harry Sheldon, William Amerpohl, Morris Erickson, William McVicar, J. D. King, superintendents—Edward Amerpohl, H. Sheldon.

Many new features will be introduced at the sixth annual show the coming month, such as three cash prizes for the heaviest dozen eggs. The Dixie Flour company has offered a barrel of flour to the one who has the nearest number of feathers in a glass jar. A greater number of prizes for the best poultry will be given this year and it is expected that there will be a record exhibit of fine birds.

Marriage License: A marriage license has been issued to Kenneth G. Gilbertson of the town of Union and Elsie B. Kutzke of Evansville.

Secretary Sutherland read a letter from the state president which explained an increase of $1 in state dues, which will make the dues of members in the county society $5 a year. This is to cover malpractice insurance in the state society, which is now compulsory. A letter from Dr. Nelson Miles Buck of Milwaukee was also read calling attention to the fact that lectures on vision by some competent doctor could be given under the auspices of the society to school children of the city. Dr. Buck will furnish slides and outlines for lectures and suggests that some woman's club be interested.

A Jacobson state organizer of the Warrantors' Association, was present at the meeting and made a plea in favor of the retailers' organization and credit rating bureau which he is establishing in this city. He pointed to results which had been thus far secured and asked the doctors to co-operate.

Tables Giving Mail Rates Being Issued. Postmaster Valentine, is Having Several Hundred Printed, As a Convenience To Public.

Postmaster Valentine of the local post-office department, is having several hundred cards printed, with the table of rates on, which are to affect the parcel post system beginning tomorrow, January 1st.

These cards will be handed out to the public, as a means of convenience, and the rates to be charged for every ounce and pound, will be tabulated, so that everyone can determine the cost for sending articles to the various zones at a glance.

It is necessary that everyone know the new change made in the rates, to take effect January 1st, as many material improvements have been made.

CHARGE LAND FRAUD DENIED BY HAUGE

Edgerton Man Arraigned Before Milwaukee Judge, Pleads Not Guilty to Complaint Made.

Albert C. Hauge, arrested last Saturday at Edgerton, Wisconsin, charged by the federal officials with being involved in a series of land swindle schemes, was brought to Milwaukee on Tuesday and pleaded not guilty before Judge Geiger in the federal court there. Bail was fixed at $500. According to the federal authorities, Hauge has operated a number of illegal land deals whereby persons in Wisconsin and Michigan have been defrauded. The principals in this swindle were indicted by the federal grand jury over eighteen months ago, but it is alleged Hauge disappeared before he could be apprehended by the government officials. The postoffice inspector of Milwaukee was notified that Hauge intended to visit his family at Edgerton to spend Christmas with them. The marshal's office in that district was notified of the affair and a deputy marshal on Saturday arrested Hauge.

It is charged by the federal officials that Hauge and his associates sent circulars through the mails to the effect that they had lands in Michigan and Wisconsin to sell at very low prices. A number of persons, it is said, paid over a large amount of money, which was discovered that the land was not owned by Hauge or his associates.

Some twenty-five members of the Rock County Medical Society were present at the annual meeting which was held last evening at the city hall. Officers for the year were elected and several business matters were discussed, but the eugenics law was not mentioned. Rock county physicians will elect their officers after Jan. 1, 1914, at a maximum expense of $3 for each examination.

Dr. J. W. Kiethley of Beloit was elected president of the society for the ensuing year to succeed Dr. Frank W. Van Kirk of Edgerton. Dr. Kiethley's name was placed in nomination by Dr. T. W. Nuzum, while Dr. M. A. Cunningham nominated Dr. H. O. Delaney of Beloit.

Other officers were elected as follows: Dr. Guy C. Waite, Janesville, vice-president; Dr. Fred Sutherland, Janesville, secretary-treasurer, and Dr. H. O. Delaney, Beloit, censor for three years. At the next meeting the society will elect their officers and one their duties of president.

President Van Kirk, upon the motion of Dr. J. F. Pember, appointed a committee to conduct an investigation into the practice of certain physicians in contracting their services for a certain fee to certain lodges and societies. The question was brought up for discussion by Dr. Delaney, who called attention to a resolution which the society had passed some time ago prohibiting the members from contracting their services for a fixed amount for an indefinite amount of work. He asked to know whether it was to be enforced, and called for a general discussion.

Attention was called to the fact that several of the lodges had gotten around the objection by paying the physician who was elected to serve as a member, his regular fees for visits and consultations. This was the case with the Eagles' lodge, according to Dr. Delaney. Dr. Nye declared that the American Medical Society had taken a more liberal attitude in this respect, and that the question of late years and thought that the society was largely governed by their rulings.

The situation at Beloit where the college has a contract with a physician which requires him to give extra fees for advice to certain students, was called into question as coming under the prohibition resolution. After some further discussion it was decided to leave the matter to an investigating committee to report at the January meeting in Beloit.

Secretary Sutherland read a letter from the state president which explained an increase of $1 in state dues, which will make the dues of members in the county society $5 a year. This is to cover malpractice insurance in the state society, which is now compulsory. A letter from Dr. Nelson Miles Buck of Milwaukee was also read calling attention to the fact that lectures on vision by some competent doctor could be given under the auspices of the society to school children of the city. Dr. Buck will furnish slides and outlines for lectures and suggests that some woman's club be interested.

Marriage License: A marriage license has been issued to Kenneth G. Gilbertson of the town of Union and Elsie B. Kutzke of Evansville.

MOST GIRLS MARRY BEFORE TWENTY-SIX RECORD INDICATES

AGES OF 19, 20, 22 AND 23 ARE POPULAR WITH ROCK COUNTY BRIDES IN 1913.

MANY YOUNG MEN WED

Large Number of Youths Embark on Sea of Matrimony Soon After Attaining Their Majority.

But thirty young women out of a total of 480 who were brides in Rock county during the year 1913, were older than 26 years when they were married, according to figures compiled by County Clerk Howard W. Leavelle. The figures indicate an early disposition on the part of the young men "to take unto themselves a wife," for 45 were married at the age of 22, 41 at 23, and 40 at 24. There were more young men who were married with the consent of their parents than there were young women, the figures standing 26 to 24. Three boys were married at 18, which is the lowest age at which a male can be married in Wisconsin under the law, while three girls were married at 15, the lowest age for females.

Among the men, however, there is a fairly large percentage who marry after the age of 30, 30 marrying between the ages of thirty and forty, and 25 after forty, during the past year. The record shows that three men became husbands at 50, one at 53, one at 60, one at 61, one at 62, and one at 75, the oldest bridegroom of the year.

The oldest bride of the year was 70 years of age. There was also a bride at 60, one at 57, one at 51, one at 50, and 9 between the ages of 40 and 50.

The following table shows the number of males and females who were married at ages ranging from 15 to 32, during the past twelve months, the record being complete for the year with the exception of today:

Age	Number of Males	Number of Females
15	0	5
16	0	5
17	0	18
18	3	24
19	6	45
20	17	34
21	25	44
22	45	50
23	41	44
24	40	27
25	41	32
26	38	17
27	38	29
28	30	6
29	14	14
30	21	6
31	10	5
32	12	5

By far the larger number of 1913 husbands are older than their wives, although there are many cases in which bride and groom were of the same age and some fifty or sixty cases in which the woman was older than the man.

There were 17 men who were one year older than the woman they married, 37 were two years older, 23 were three years older, 24 were four years older, and 19 were five years older. There were two husbands who were nineteen years their wives' senior, and one who had lived twenty-nine more years than his bride.

Of the women who were older than their husbands the figures are as follows: 21 were one year older, 16 two years, 8 three years, 3 nine years, and two women were 14 years the senior of the men they married.

The Evening Chit-Chat

BY RUTH CAMERON

IF ONLY—

THERE is a certain little restaurant not far from here at which the best food I ever ate is served. The menu is perfectly simple, there are no fancy courses in the dinner. But each dish is well selected and perfectly cooked. And, as far as food goes, I would rather have one of those simple little dinners than the most elaborate table d'hôte at the most expensive hotel.

Perhaps you wonder why I say "as far as food goes." Well, then, the restaurant is situated up two flights of stairs in a rather unbecoming part of the city; the appointments of the room are not attractive; there is no music and the lights are unshaded.

Now, it frequently happens that my eyes are hungrier than my stomach, and on these occasions I go to a dainty little restaurant where the surroundings are more satisfactory and the food less so. And while I delight in the nice linen and attractive china, the flowers on the table and the shaded candles shedding their soft lustre on the scene, I can't help thinking to myself, "If only I could find some safe that combined the attractiveness of this and the good food of K's."

But I can't. And you never can. That is the law of life. There is always a compensation and there is always a loss. We are always being forced to choose between this and that good, and we are always thinking IF ONLY we might have BOTH this and that.

The husband of a friend of mine has established a business which only requires his presence in town about half the week. That has made it possible for him to buy a charming place several miles out of town where land values are not so high that one cannot afford to have room to breathe in about one's home. They have taken a quaint old house and fitted it up with a modern conveniences, and they have a vegetable garden, a rose garden and a tennis court, and a lawn with a river at the back. And best of all, the master of the house is able to be at home to enjoy this three days out of the week. It seemed to me that they had an ideal existence. But what do you think the lady of the house said to me the other day. "Yes, it is beautiful, and I know we are fortunate, but I do hate to have John gone two or three days at a time. I think it would be so nice if only he could manage to conduct his business by mail from his home office."

So, even in the conditions that seem ideal to the outsider, there is sure to be some "if only." It isn't anybody's fault, you know, it's just the kind of a world this is—a world where the eternal search for completeness is the law of life, and the finding of it the beginning of decay and death. Sometimes we find it in a world where "if only" doesn't exist and everything is perfect and complete. And then I wonder if we'll like it any better. For, after all,

"This world that we're a'livin' in
Is mighty hard to be contented with,
You get a thorn with every rose,
But ain't the roses sweet?"

Heart and Home Problems

Dear Mrs. Thompson—(1) A girl asked you if they should take boys into their bedrooms and you said "No." A boy friend called on me and he was a very nice fellow, and as he was dressing he was told to sit down and wait, but as soon as he had been left alone he came and entered my bedroom. Should I refuse to speak to him as he is so healthy and full of life? (2) Am I going to give a party (surprise) on a girl friend of mine. How should I word the invitations? (3) I am invited to a party. Kissing games are to be played. Should I go as my friends are coming for me? SWEET SIXTEEN.

(1) Tell your boy friend that if he cannot respect your privacy, he must keep away from your room. He will not do that, tell your mother and father about it and have them refuse to let him come into the house. A boy like that needs to be taught. (2) Make the invitation informal, in the form of a little note to each guest stating the fact of the surprise party, the time and the place of meeting and whether or not the guest is to bring a part of the lunch. (3) It depends. Personally I do not care for cards—they seem such a waste of time. But there is no particular harm in a family game or friends playing cards, and they can play good-naturedly. (4) You need not accept the invitation, or you can keep out of the games if you go.

TRAINING SCHOOL NOTES.

The school will be in session but three days this week, Friday, Jan. 2, will be made up by running the school on Saturday, Feb. 21, at which time the country teachers will be invited to a Washington-Lincoln program and also to a conference on country school problems.

Miss Tresa Wolhiser of Whitewater, a country teacher, and Miss Besie Jenkins of South Wayne, visited the training school on Monday. The Misses Murphree of Beloit, and Miss Kern, a grade teacher in Iowa, cousins of Alice Carroll, a training school student, were interested visitors at the training school apartments on Monday of this week.

The Changing Age

Girls and boys from 14 to 19 years of age undergo physical changes which tax their strength to the utmost, and the strain is always apparent from pale cheeks, colorless lips, and tired bodies—sometimes eruptions of the skin and the utter lack of the ambition and animation which their younger years were filled.

Budding into womanhood and manhood, with the duties of school or business, demands concentrated nourishment which is readily convertible into red blood corpuscles, energy and strength, and the very best thing for this changing age is the medical nutrient in Scott's Emulsion—it possesses the rare blood-making properties of cod liver oil in a predigested form; hypophosphates for the nervous system, with the healing, soothing qualities of pure glycerine.

Its nourishing force promotes assimilation, yields direct returns in abundant, red blood, fills hollow cheeks, tones the nerves, makes all good food do good, and does it in a natural easy manner.

The sustaining nourishment in Scott's Emulsion is so helpful to this changing age that it should never be neglected—every druggist has it.

ing houses. In a case of fifteen staple articles of food the bureau of labor finds that from 1896 to 1911 retail prices increased 50.2%. How about teachers' wages?

"The Western Teacher" says, "Except in cases of urgent necessity, don't write notes to parents concerning their children's shortcomings, in such cases cold 'black or white' is sure to be misinterpreted. See the parent." Yes, see the parent—that would be the way of solving many school problems. Don't stand on your dignity, teacher, but go to the home and see the parent, best of all the mother, if possible.

Miss Janet Cody, principle of the Jefferson school, visited the training school Tuesday and witnessed some of the class work. Lydia Sommerfeld, a graduate of the class of 1913, visited the training school Tuesday. They are both country teachers in Rock county.

A student at St. Mary's Academy, Prairie du Chien, visited the training school Tuesday. Miss Gullen attended the training school last year.

Household Hints

THINGS WORTH KNOWING.

Boiled or stewed meats should be seasoned when cooking.

Broiled and fried meats should be seasoned after removing from the fire.

To peel oranges easily, pour boiling hot water over them, twist them around and let them stand five minutes. They will then peel like tomatoes.

It is well to remember that if bread, rolls or cake are mixed with water, a hotter oven is required for baking them than if milk is used.

THE TABLE.

Peanut Cookies—One cupful of butter, one-half cupful of powdered sugar, three eggs, one cup of freshly roasted peanuts, pounded, rolled to a coarse powder and mixed with about three cupfuls of flour. Cream the butter and sugar, add the beaten egg, then the flour and crushed peanuts. The dough should be just stiff enough to handle easily. Drop the dough by the spoonful upon a floured board, pat it into round cakes with the fingers, grate a little nutmeg over the top of each cake and bake over the top of each cake and bake over the top of each cake.

Omelet With Marmalade—Beat the yolks of three eggs very light. Then fold in the whites beaten dry. Turn into an omelet pan in which one teaspoonful of butter has been melted. Spread the omelet evenly and cook over a slow fire to set the eggs. Then put in the oven until done. Spread one-half of the omelet with marmalade, fold and serve on a hot platter.

Chocolate Sauce—Boil together a half cupful of sugar and a cupful of water for five minutes, stir in four tablespoonfuls of chocolate dissolved in a gill of milk, and a tablespoonful of arrowroot dissolved in four tablespoonfuls of cold water. Boil for five minutes longer, stirring steadily, add a teaspoonful of vanilla and a dash of cinnamon, and serve.

Sweetbreads, Country Style—Par-boil sweetbreads, sprinkle with salt and pepper and dredge with flour. Arrange in a baking dish, brush over with melted butter, allowing two tablespoonfuls of each pair of sweetbreads, and cover with thin slices of fat salt pork. Bake in a hot oven over twenty-five minutes, basting twice during the cooking, and remove the pork during the last five minutes of the cooking.

Noodles—One egg, one-half teaspoonful of salt, flour. Beat the eggs slightly, add the salt and flour enough to make a very stiff dough. Knead, toss on slightly floured board and roll as thinly as possible, which may be as thin as paper. Cover with a towel and set aside for twenty minutes; then cut in fancy shapes, using sharp knife or French vegetable cutter; or the thin sheet may be rolled like jelly roll, cut in slices as thinly as possible and pieces unrolled. Dry and, when needed, cook twenty minutes in boiling salted water, drain and add to the soup.

Noodles may be served as a vegetable.

Cream of Mushroom Soup—One-half pound of mushrooms, four cups of white stock, one slice of onion, one-quarter cup of butter, one-quarter cup of flour, one cup of cream, salt, pepper, two tablespoonfuls of sauteur. Chop the mushrooms, add to white sauce with onion, cook twenty minutes and rub through a sieve, which covers it. Add butter and flour cooked together, then add cream and salt and pepper to taste. Just before serving add wine.

Every Day Talks for Every Day People

BY FRANCES JOYCE KENNEDY.

In the firelight's glow sat a typical young married woman. Two hours ago the old year had sunk into the silent past. The clock's ticking was the only sound to be heard; around her all was singularly still. As she gazed into the firelight her mind traveled back to the year that would soon slip over the edge of the abyss of time to join its silent predecessors.

January—She knelt beside a cradle, praying a baby, who was her losing fight of many weeks, would be called to the land of his babies seem so fitting a part.

February—With eyes that were dimmed with sorrow she stood by the bedside of her father who had been to the silent past. The clock's ticking was the only sound to be heard; around her all was singularly still. As she gazed into the firelight her mind traveled back to the year that would soon slip over the edge of the abyss of time to join its silent predecessors.

March—Blustering, stormy, cold, yet bringing to her husband a promise of a better year than the last. In the lives of them both how she wished that would have been here for her to tell him; he always took so kindly an interest in their affairs and was so pleased when things went well with them.

April and May had sped by with flying footsteps. June was with her ere she realized it. June with her wealth of roses that enabled her to be lavish in the decorating of her home, with the sweet scented flowers, not forgetting the two mounds on the sloping side of the sun-kissed hill in the silent city of the dead.

July—Arthur's parents had visited that quiet joy for the roses bloom again another little life had been ushered into their home. Little Helen's crib had been brought down from the empty room upstairs. She starts to meet Arthur, whose steps she hears on the porch. "You were not lonely dear, for my father here into his arms in his gentle, masterful way, that always caused her heart to beat again in that half-nighted, wholly happy way it did when first he looked into her eyes.

"Not lonely! No! I only wish every woman in the world had as much cause to be thankful and happy as I, at the dawn of the glad New Year" was her answer given as the bells of the city rang out the old, rung in the new.

There are better cigars made in Janesville than in any other city of its size. "El Marko" and "Reliance" are some of them. Those that smoked them surely had as good or better smoke than any of the imported, and it will be our effort to maintain or excel in quality, if possible to further merit this patronage.

With best wishes for the New Year

BANANAS FOR CHILDREN

Bananas are constantly fighting for a place on our bill of fare, especially for the children. It is the most common thing to hear mothers say, "I never give bananas to my children; they don't agree with them."

They have never stopped to ask or at least be convinced why such might be the case. Everyone knows bananas are picked green and shipped to market where they are slowly allowed to ripen by artificial means.

The great difficulty is here: This fruit is purchased when yellow and green in color, and instead of a dark yellow and mottled brown, grocery and fruit men have told me repeatedly that the average housekeeper would return the dark bananas which I carefully select for myself.

They think they are spoiled and have given up trying to convince them that is the color they should be when ripe," says the salesman.

Our best food authorities give much importance to the food value of bananas when purchased in this perfectly ripe condition. The coarse fiber should be scraped from them before eating.

Sliced Bananas. Slice bananas very thin after peeling and scraping off the long coarse fiber which covers it. Allow me to repeat "slice thin," as it makes all the difference in the world in the taste and it is most difficult to get it done when ordering such a dish.

Squeeze over a few drops of lemon juice and serve with powdered sugar and thick cream. These are fine for children, poured over sponge cake and served as a dessert or sweet at luncheon.

Baked Bananas. For children in particular the digestion is hastened by cooking, but if ripe as described above bananas are good for them not cooked.

Baked bananas are particularly nice for breakfast or luncheon. Remove one section of the skin from the banana and lay the required number in a shallow pan. Sprinkle with a very little granulated sugar, bits of butter and lemon juice and bake in a moderate oven fifteen or twenty minutes. Serve hot in the skins.

Fruit Cocktails. Material—Small grapefruit, one; oranges, two; malaga grapes, one-fourth pound; banana, one; lemon juice, two tablespoonfuls.

Directions—Cut the grapefruit and oranges in halves and carefully remove the fruit. Drain. Sprinkle with a very little powdered sugar and lemon juice. Skin and seed the grapes and slice the bananas. Cover all with a grapefruit juice and a tablespoon or two of sherry. Cover and chill for one hour. Serve at the beginning of a luncheon or dinner as an appetizer, serving neither too much nor having it too sweet.

ADVERTISED LETTERS. Gentlemen—Fred Adams, Clyde Anderson, Emmett L. Grader, F. Emanuelson, Earl Graves, Earl Harmer, Walter Hayes, George Hinterberger, Percy L. Kenyon, J. F. It was with a Janesville Plow that a 14-year-old boy, John Webber, won the first prize in the Plowing Contest at Grant Park, September 27, 1913. He again proved that it does not take years of experience to manage a Janesville and get the best results.

Janesville Plows took the sweepstake prize in all contests entered in Wheatland, Ill., Big Rock, Ill., and Grant Park, Ill., this year.

RETROSPECTIVE REVIEW

In presenting this edition of the Gazette to its readers the management has tried to include in its columns all the essential features that go to make up the elements of the growing community we all live in, all believe in, and of which we are all justly proud. There is no more fertile county than Rock in the state of Wisconsin. There is no garden spot in the whole country that surpasses our natural advantages, can yield the crops that this soil is capable of producing, can boast the steady growth or the same prosperity as can Rock county.

In the center of this district is located Janesville, the natural geographical center of southern Wisconsin; a city replete with natural advantages, with railroad facilities, with schools, churches and shops that can not be surpassed outside of the large cities. To this natural mart come the produce of the farms, come the shoppers from the surrounding country. It has been demonstrated that even the youths of the county can grow successful corn crops. It is a well known fact that Rock county products command the highest prices, that its manufactured products go to the four winds of the heaven, that its cities are places to live in, to work for, to be proud of.

In presenting this brief resume of the year's happenings, the daily occurrences of the past year, the activities of the various business interests, the fraternal organizations, the Commercial club, the newly organized Twenty-Five Thousand club, but a moment's pause is given to the community during the past twelve months. There is a far greater tale to be related by the activity of the men who have lived in the past, who came to this country in the early day, who made possible the actualities of today.

This is history. We can not delve too far back into the dim past. We must merely give tribute to those sturdy pioneers of the present day industry and look to the future. Onward and upward the community will grow. Forward is our state motto, our watchword, and with this slogan in mind we can not fail to appreciate what the past year brought to us and look to the future for further honors. Tonight the old year dies. Tonight, while we make merry, while bells ring, Nineteen Thirteen passes away. It is the death bed of a dying monarch. To such he has brought joy and jubilation. He is dying, he is passing away, an dwindle he lies on the death couch he is deserted by his faithful followers who seek to welcome the glad new year, the new monarch, Nineteen Fourteen.

One of Janesville's Leading Industries

THE above pictured mill, the plant of the Rock River Woolen Mills, is well toward the top of the list of the country's largest woolen manufactories. This large manufacturing institution furnishes steady employment, at a high average wage, to over 100 people the year round.

Curtis & Warren, owners of the mill and commission merchants of Chicago, handle the entire output comprising the highest grade Melton Cloths and Mackinaw Cloths and dispose of the goods to the big manufacturers of men's ready-to-wear clothes.

Only pure wool is used in the process of making these cloths. Considerably over 600,000 pounds of raw wool is consumed each year in making the quarter of a million yards of finished product turned out. This wool is brought directly here from the sheep ranches of Montana and other western points.

Many thousands of dollars are invested in machinery; huge carding, spinning and weaving machines wonderfully accurate in the performance of amazingly delicate and intricate processes. The splendid water power of Rock river is utilized to turn the wheels. There is also a complete dye plant in connection to color the cloths any desired shade.

Resident Manager Mr. A. G. Jones is in entire charge of the operating department and has a record of many years' success, in the management of the plant, to his credit.

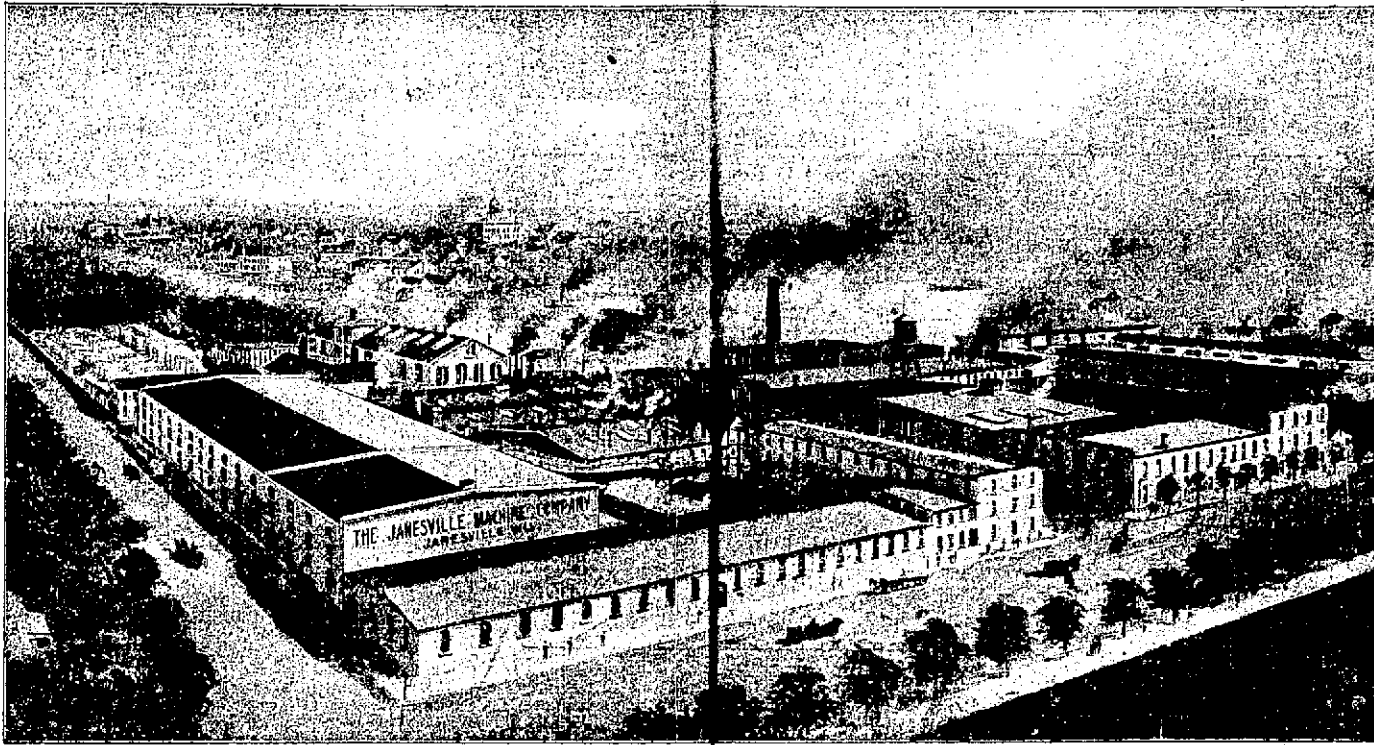

This plant was established in Janesville in 1883 and has enjoyed a flourishing business each year since its inception.

We Here Record But Plain Facts

At The Theatre

The tax rate of Janesville is the second lowest in the state.

One of the most sanitary cities in the country, a natural drainage

Theatrical managers throughout the country deplore the advent of the moving pictures into the legitimate production field, but despite their efforts the moving pictures have come to stay and meet a demand, fill a hitherto uncatered to in the various communities. This fact perhaps explains why there are so few regular show companies on the road this season as compared to previous years, and theater managers find it hard to bill first-class attractions.

In New York, Philadelphia, Washington, Chicago, St. Louis and even Boston theater managers complain of the "movies" as affecting their business, but meanwhile the "movies" continue to grow in popularity to give an evening's entertainment at a moderate cost, and the public accepts them gladly. Janesville has two theaters devoted entirely to this class of entertainment—the Lyric and Majestic, and two, the Apollo and Royal, that have vaudeville as an added attraction. The fifth theater with the motion pictures, the Myers, plays them on open dates when there is no theatrical production offered, and during the summer months the Ardmore caters to the same line of patronage as the others during the warm weather evenings.

Janesville thus has plenty of theatrical and motion picture productions to choose from. Considering the fact that the motion pictures have detracted from the legitimate theatrical offerings throughout the country, the plays and comedies presented in Janesville at the Myers theater during the past year deserve particular notice. Within the past twelve months Manager Peter L. Myers of the Myers theater has presented to the Janesville theatergoers three of the best musical comedy companies that have been on the road, and the performances that were given from the Janesville stage were by the original companies direct from Chicago. At every performance that opera house was taxed for standing room, and in the cases of "The Girl at the Gate" and the "Rose Maid" the productions could have played to packed houses for a three nights' engagement. Musical comedies have proven to be the most popular diversion of theatrical attractions in this city, and Manager Myers has endeavored to satisfy the wants of the people.

Good dramas have also marked the bookings at the Janesville theater. Many first-class companies, presenting the latest dramas were given here with excellent success. The Frank Winninger and Jack Bessey stock companies offering their plays to the public at popular priced rates, broke all records for attendance during their engagements in this city.

Lyman Howe's moving picture exhibitions gave their usual two visits during the year and at both times gave most delightful entertainments. A novelty in the pictures was given at the local stage on Paul Rainey's African Hunt. These pictures had created considerable attention in the motion picture world and Janesville enjoyed the exhibition during their days exhibition in this city. A masterpiece in moving picture films was offered by the Klem Photo Play company "Quo Vadis." These pictures undoubtedly pleased the Janesville people more than many of the stage productions, it being a leader in film art. Talking pictures were successfully introduced to the Janesville public. During the year several amateur efforts were offered, the best being the minstrels by the Lakota club, which drew a packed house, and the presentation of the musical comedy "The Pirates of Penzance" by the Treble Clef of Beloit on Thanksgiving day.

One of the rare treats of the year was given on April 14, when the Chicago symphony orchestra, with Francis Stock as conductor, gave a splendid musical entertainment in this city. It is seldom that a city of this size is given an opportunity of hearing such famed musicians.

The following important shows appeared at the theater during the past year:

booked during the year, running a close second to Raymond Hitchcock's comedy, "The Red Widow."

Dec. 4, "Mutt and Jeff," with a larger chorus and better actors, gave an excellent musical comedy here. This performance was 50 per cent better than the first engagement.

On Dec. 25 and 26 a successful engagement of Lyman Howe's pictures was given.

On Dec. 28 the Frank Winninger company opened with a week's engagement of popular priced semi-musical comedies.

"Within The Law"

After an entire season at the Eltinge Theatre, New York, where it played to capacity business, from the beginning to the end of the long engagement, "Within the Law," Bayard Veiller's absorbing melodrama of modern life in New York, will come to the Myers Theatre Thursday, January 30. This play which has for its principal theme an exposition of the police methods and economic conditions that exist in the metropolis, has excited more comment than any drama produced within the half-century mark. The minimum wage question now being agitated so widely is one of the important themes selected by the dramatist as the basic material of his play. There is a story of a poor shop-girl who is sent to prison for a crime she does not commit. After her release and a vain endeavor to obtain decent employment, she becomes the "brains" of a gang of "crooks" and as their leader carries on various schemes by which she obtains enormous sums of money, managing always to keep within the pale of the law, and snapping her fingers in the face of the police department.

Jan. 25, "The Military Girl," a light musical comedy proved mildly interesting.

Feb. 1 "The Divorce Question," a gripping drama, was presented with great success, the plot leaving a profound impression on the large audiences that attended the matinee and evening performances.

Feb. 9 "Paid in Full" was given.

Feb. 26 The Original company from the La Salle theater, Chicago, offered "The Girl at the Gate" to the Janesville public and it proved the most popular musical comedy that was comedy, was given and produced at the merriest that was expected.

April 4 the Conan & Harris company gave "Broadway Jones." The company was good and the performance won large praise among Janesville theatergoers.

the new building is located. A. M. Mead was the contractor.

While contractors are well pleased with the showing of the year just closed, they are looking forward to even greater activity in 1914, and excavations have already been made for several residences. In connection with a review of the building trades the builders' exchange which has been organized and which is now being installed in the rooms on the second floor of the Carle block, at the corner of Main and Milwaukee streets, deserves prominent attention. A movement to form such an association of contractors and material men started early in the year and plans for an exhibit room in the Sutherland block on the Milwaukee street bridge were halted by the destructive fire of April 1.

The rush of the season's building activities interrupted organization plans until within the past few weeks when the exchange has finally been realized.

Contractors, carpenters and builders, plumbers, painters, material men and decorators are banded together for the purpose of mutual improvement and betterment, with the idea of serving the public, especially those persons who contemplate building, in

Green is president of the new organization and George R. Davis is secretary and in charge of the exhibit room.

The organization of the Wisconsin Master Carpenters' association at Milwaukee early in 1913, in which Janesville contractors took a prominent part, was also an event of importance to the building trade. Janesville contractors will entertain the delegates of the association at the second annual convention on Jan. 9 and 10 of the new year.

Returning to the review of 1913 construction work one line of improvement is especially noteworthy, and that is the bridge building for which a large amount of money was expended in this city during the season. Two fine structures have been built spanning Rock river—the upper railroad bridge, which was completed in mid-summer and the street bridge at Milwaukee street. The bridge over Spring Brook on South Main street is a third bridge added to the list in Janesville, which now has a wide reputation as "the city of good bridges."

The railroad bridge, built jointly for the Chicago and Northwestern and Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul rail-of its kind in the state, barring none. The new telephone exchange of the Rock County Telephone company, located at the corner of Dodge and South Jackson streets, is soon to be occupied. It has been erected with care and dispatch by Contractor W. R. Haver. It will be equipped in every detail for the handling of the company's thriving business.

The Y. M. C. A. building has been extensively remodeled and now presents one of the finest association buildings in the state. New dormitories have been added, a new gymnasium installed, and the entire interior of the building altered to meet the growing conditions and the demands of the members. The cost will be nearly $25,000, raised by subscriptions. E. Pautz, the contractor, has done excellent work in this extensive improvement.

The new garage of the Janesville Motor company, on South Bluff street, is another substantial building which has been completed during the year. With greater floor space the company is in a position to handle its increasing business to the best possible advantage.

The Buggs garage, on North Academy street, has been enlarged with a substantial one-story brick addition which was built by Julius Hagar.

Another brick warehouse was built this season for the Hough Porch Shade company, on McKee boulevard. The remodeling at the Jefferson school was an important item of public construction work and was done by Contractor Summers.

Another beautiful church edifice has been erected in the city by the congregation of St. John's German Lutheran church. It is a fine brick structure, modern and complete in every detail, with elegant stained glass windows and attractive interior finish and furnishings. It is located at the corner of North Bluff street and Pease's court. E. Pautz was the contractor. The structure complete cost nearly $25,000.

One of the new residences which was among the first to be completed was that of F. A. Capelle, corner of Sinclair and South Third streets. This is a beautiful brick home of the colonial style of architecture, handsome in its lines and elegant in its interior decorations. J. A. Denning was the contractor.

J. F. Pember's residence, corner of South Jackson and Pleasant streets, is a beautiful home of dark paving brick with white stone trimmings. It is a special city style design for a small lot and covers practically the entire lot. One feature is the garage accommodation on the lower floor of the east wing of the building. The interior decorations are distinctive and artistic. J. A. Denning was the contractor. It is roomy and attractive in outward lines and is fitted with modern plumbing, heating apparatus and fixtures. E. Pautz was the builder.

A beautiful brick retaining wall built about the lot adds much to the general appearance and marks the place as one of the most attractive homes in the city. Ford & Boos were the building contractors.

J. K. Jensen's residence on Court street is another brick residence of substantial construction and attractive design. It has nine rooms, is modern in every detail, and is a comfortable and commodious home. Ford & Boos were the building contractors.

Harry F. Jones owns a handsome new home on South Main street. It also is constructed of brick, has a roomy south veranda, and a sleeping porch, and is thoroughly modern and up-to-date.

Story of a Precocious Five-Year-Old. Bill Bowen of Atchison tells the Globe of a woman and her little son who were on a Central Branch train the other day. "Fare, please," the conductor said, and the woman handed him one ticket. "Boy will have to pay, too, madam," said the conductor. "Oh, but he's only five years old," she replied. "Looks mighty old to be only five years old," snapped the conductor. "Yes, he does, but you see, he has been doing a lot of worrying," she answered.

Cracks in Mahogany. To remove cracks in mahogany the following process is recommended: A concentrated solution of gum arabic and English red, both thoroughly mixed, is pressed into the cracks with a spatula; a slight addition of dragon's blood dissolved in alcohol imparts to the polish of the mahogany a brilliant, beautiful tone—Scientific American.

ble homes of which it can boast. As surely as there are noteworthy building improvements made during a given length of time, just so surely may it be said that there has been a growth, not only along structural lines but in business and industry which constitute the very life of any municipality.

Judged by this standard, Janesville's progress is at once pronounced and permanent, steady and conservative. This city is becoming more beautiful and more attractive; it is achieving an air of unusual prosperity and even affluence as a result of the excellent structures which successive years are bringing.

Looking over the past year, building contractors in Janesville are especially struck by the large number of expensive and substantial buildings which have indicated the enterprise and progress of Janesville citizens. A low estimate places the cost of improvements, including the large number of remodeling jobs, at $400,000. This is a most favorable comparison with previous years, and when the character of the new buildings is taken into consideration the 1913 record is most creditable in every respect.

More than anything else permanency has been the principal characteristic of the building improvements of the past year. One has only to enumerate some of the first structures which come into one's mind to see the truth of this assertion. There is the First National bank building, the new exchange building of the Rock County Telephone company, the Janesville Motor company garage building, the remodeled Peters building, St. John's German Lutheran church, which suffice to indicate the success with which this important ters with visitors. In addition the members of the exchange will hold regular meetings at which business problems will be solved and questions will be discussed. It prom-

the Gould Construction company of Davenport, Ia., will cost the city of Janesville nearly $38,000. Built of concrete and steel, the structure will be a model of strength and beauty. Credit for its permanency and style must be shared by the construction company with City Engineer C. V. Kerch, who drew the plans and specifications which have been followed to the minutest detail. The plans were approved by the state railroad commission at Madison and were also submitted for the approval of the United States department. It has been built with unusual dispatch considering the difficulties which had to be contended with.

The Spring Brook bridge was built by the W. C. Kienan company of Whitewater and is now completed and open to traffic. It is also a reinforced concrete structure, erected along the same lines as the Milwaukee street bridge.

Returning to the business buildings, the Peters block on East Milwaukee street, which was the first large building of the year to be completed, is certainly one of which Janesville citizens can be proud. The construction work was under Mr. Peters' own supervision and the remodeling was carefully and thoroughly done. As a result in the place of the old ramshackle building which had been an eyesore for years to the heart of the business district, there is a fine, attractive four-story building with three modern up-to-date stores on the first floor and nine apartments, three on each of the three floors, which are most complete in every respect. The city as well as Mr. Peters is to be congratulated on the structure.

particular has been carried out. In addition to stability and permanency there has been an evident and successful attempt at greater architectural beauty. The new bank, with its large Corinthian columns and its white stone trimmings standing out from the dark red brick, is again one of the foremost buildings in this regard; while the Peters building, offering an entirely new type of architecture which might be called the Knights Templar design, with the crosses and inlaid squares standing out in the yellow tile-glazed brick, is another structure of pronounced beauty.

The new residences, too are unusual for their air of substantial comfort and permanent beauty. The high price of lumber has made brick a favorite material for home builders and as a result Janesville can boast of some new residences which would do credit to any city three times the size. To illustrate, reference need only be made to the residences of Thomas S. Nolan on South Third street, of Harry F. Jones on South Main street, of J. K. Jensen on Court street, of F. A. Capelle on South Third street, and of J. F. Pember on Pleasant street.

The largest frame building erected during the year was built for Christ Knudson, on North High street. It is a four-apartment building, modern in every detail, with numerous and attractive features, prominent among which is the large double-deck front porch. In the rear of the flat building, on Ravine street, is a comfortable frame cottage which was rebuilt from the house which stood where

A WONDERFUL GROWTH

IN April, 1904, our college was opened in one room of the second floor of Assembly hall block containing not more than 800 square feet with an enrollment of seventeen pupils. In the next few years our space was enlarged two or three times to accommodate increasing attendance. Today in Central hall block, to which we have recently moved, we occupy a floor space of over 5,000 square feet, especially equipped and laid out to meet the demands of a modern business school. Our school is now attended annually by almost 250 of the brightest and brainiest young people in this part of the country. Our rooms have the finest lighting, steam heating and every sanitary convenience than can add to the comfort and convenience of the student.

EQUIPMENT

Every mechanical modern office device has been installed for the students' assistance, including the Adding Machine, Writerpress, Mimeograph, Letter Press, Type-writer and Adding Machine combined, Billing Machines, etc.

The furniture is almost entirely new and recent addition of new furniture has been made to supply the increasing attendance.

In September 1912 the Janesville Business College was selected by the Stenotype Company to teach the use of the STENO-TYPE—the fastest shorthand writing machine in the world.

Facts About The Methods Employed By The New Proprietors Of The Buob Brewing Co.

In the brewing of our products we use only the very choicest material.

We purchase the finest barley, malt and hops that money can buy and skill select.

The various processes for brewing and fermenting are all conducted and supervised in an environment of cleanliness by expert brewmasters.

The water is from a well bored deep down into the earth.

The water springs up clear and sparkling, bubbling with health giving qualities, and is peculiarly well adapted to the making of a rich and mellow beer.

Every known device, method and mechanical improvement in the art of brewing that tends to cleanliness, purity and perfection is used by us.

Then we have a large storage capacity whereby we are enabled with ease and convenience to "store" and "age" or "lager" our beer the required length of time.

This makes it always mature and healthful and fit for the most delicate stomach.

The storage of beer is of great importance, and with our large storehouse, equipped with a splendid refrigerating system we are enabled to maintain a suitable and proper temperature for the beer during all seasons.

When barley beer is made from the best material it contains both detrine and albumen, which are foods; also phosphates which build up bone, brain and tissue.

The extract of the hop blossom acts as a splendid digestive and quiets the nerves.

Furthermore, the small amount of alcohol in really good beer is a wholesome natural tonic for the entire system while the effervescing carbonic acid gas makes the beverage refreshing and gratifying.

For these reasons we claim that "Buob's" is a beer of commanding superiority—that it is a beverage, a tonic, and restorer, as well as a nourishing, natural, healthful food of substantial value.

It quenches the thirst, charms the palate, delights the soul, enriches the blood and builds body, bone and brain.

THE SPORT WORLD

In olden days the fame of the Janesville track was known from one end of the country to the other. Wherever light harness horses raced, Janesville trained and Janesville bred horses were to be found. In those days aside from the annual race meet a county fair was held at the grounds now owned by the Janesville Park association, a most successful one at that, and the city was crowded with visitors for hold erection of new stalls, the rebuilding of the mile track and the making of a new half mile track, to local interest revived.

JOHN C. NICKOLS
President Driving Park Association.

Then came the initial meet. Most successful and the past two seasons have seen the best light horse harness racing in the northwest held right here on the Janesville tracks. There was the largest field of entries of any race meet in Wisconsin, in fact than in many of the adjacent states. Better time was made and the horses that started here have proved their worth in hard fought battles elsewhere.

Now plans are in process for the reorganization of the old fair idea. It is suggested that Janesville and the fair proposition to its already successful race meets; that Janesville invite the surrounding country to bring their fine blooded stock, their agricultural exhibits, their fine arts, their displays to Janesville once a year for an exhibit just as now the best horses in the middle west are brought here to be trained and raced.

The idea has met with favor. The directors of the Park association at their last meeting decided to bring the proposition to the attention of the general public, and if they desired such a fair to hold one, providing enough money can be raised to make it successful. It will need funds for new buildings to house the art exhibit, a most important function of any fair; to care for the domestic exhibits, merchants' displays and other exhibits that would be ruined should it be attempted to place them in big tents.

Two of the buildings now standing might be utilized for horticultural and agricultural displays, and the cattle year will see our committee hard at work sounding the sentiment of the citizens on the question.

The officers of the Park association for the coming year are: John C. Nickols, president; John Soulmán, vice president; Charles Putnam, secretary and manager; Edward Amerpohl, treasurer, and Dr. Wayne Munn, Frank Croak and Harry Newlan on of Edgerton, fast pacer (Jim Brooks), a corner, and Mabel Riser, owned by Phil Sheridan. All these horses made good records for themselves and won substantial purses for their owners.

"In fact there were thirty trainers and swipes at the track all summer and at present fifteen horses are being wintered here. All the horses trained here this last summer will be back next year, and from present indications we will have over 100 head in training here when the grass gets green next spring. To meet this demand for extra stalls the association plans to construct two new stables of twenty-five stalls each, fifty stalls in all, to conform to the design of the new barns erected two years ago. These are absolutely necessary whether we hold a fair or not.

"Speaking of a fair, I do not see why such a venture would not prove successful. We have the race meet, the entries already assured, and to hold a fair it would mean the added features of the regular three-day race meet. We would need new buildings, two at least, as well as stalls of substantial character for the stallions that would be sure to be an important part of the exhibit. Then, too, we would need to enlarge the grand stand, double its present capacity at least to meet the demands of the public.

"The average fair goer does not want to stand up all the afternoon to watch events on the track, and when they go to a fair they are willing to be shown in big tents, as could pay a fair price for comfortable seats. Jefferson, Elkhorn and other successful fairs have grand stands that will seat from four to five thousand people and they are crowded during their races. We would also need new buildings to house the fine arts and household exhibits, as well as improvements on the two buildings now standing of they were to be ultimately made habitable for agricultural and horticultural exhibits.

"Such a fair would have to be held previous to the regular run of fairs, say about the middle of August, and would not interfere with any fairs held either in Evansville or Beloit, but would in fact help them. It could not be the Rock county fair for that is Evansville's official title, but a good old-fashioned fair would pay I am certain, and the Park association is ready to father the proposition if the public want it had enough to aid financially."

events. Good sized substantial purses were hung up and the best blooded stock in the country appeared in the local track.

Later the track fell into disuse, the county fair had been abandoned and for years Janesville only dreamed of the past and the former exhibits that the sheep and fat hogs, but it would be necessary to have good substantial buildings for the blooded horses and imported stock that is to be found in Rock county. It will mean money expended to start with, but it would be repaid twofold within a short time by future exhibits. The grand stand itself would have to be remodeled, the present seating capacity of fifteen hundred at least doubled to make it a paying venture.

However, it might be accomplished. It can be successful if everyone inter-

the board of directors. These men were elected directors at the last annual meeting of the stockholders, and they in turn elected their own officers. The report of the treasurer and secretary show the financial affairs of the association are in good shape, that bright prospects for the future are held out.

Secretary Charles Putnam, upon whose shoulders most of the burdens for successful race meets rests, is enthusiastic over the prospects. He ested aid in the work at hand. As Vice President John Soulmán of the association said recently, "It is up to the people to say whether we have a fair or not. Such a fair would not conflict with any other exhibit of similar nature in the country. In fact it would be a benefit. It would increase the interest and mean much to Janesville. The Park association is ready to do its part and I trust the fair can be obtained."

President John C. Nickols of the association is most enthusiastic over the project as well as past and future race meets that may be held. He believes in the future of the light harness game in Janesville and says: "With the Janesville track one of the members of the Wisconsin Grand circuit, with the prestige of two successful meets, with the promise of better affairs in the future, the only thing that Janesville needs now is a successfully conducted fair. Such a fair could be financed and would attract thousands of visitors to our city, as well as give all the residents of the county a chance to not only make said: "During the past two years the association has conducted two of the most successful racing meets ever staged in the northwest. On Aug. 14, 15 and 16 last two successful racing meets were held for purses of $400 each, which brought out a field of 125 entries. It was the cream of the light horse squadron of racers that afterwards appeared in various events on the largest tracks in the country. During the training season sixty head of valuable blooded stock were put in condition here and the majority of them, barring accidents, made a most excellent showing on the big tracks of the country later. Notable among them were Ernest Axtell who created a mark of 2:08 1/4 on the grand circuit. This horse is owned by Lindauer of Kaukauna and is a trotter of not well worth watching. He also owned a green paces, Little Rapid, that was third at Lexington in a heat that was won in 2:07 1/2. Then there was The President, Jr., owned by W. H. Wonderful Achievement in Which Two Buicks Were the Only Cars to Go Through a 500-Mile Reliability Run With Perfect Scores

In one of the most rigidly ruled reliability runs which was conducted in New York early this month, the only cars to make the 500-mile trial with no penalties were two 1914 Buicks; one a six and the other a 25 four. Not only were the cars penalized for lateness at controls but for defective equipment and for work done on the roads, such as electric starting and lighting difficulties, blowouts, in fact every nut, bolt and screw in the cars had to pass a rigid technical examination.

HEALTH CONDITIONS IN CITY REMARKABLE

1913 SHOWS TREMENDOUS DECREASE IN CONTAGIOUS DISEASES—DR. BUCKMASTER IS PLEASED.

AUGUST BEST MONTH

Not Over Five Cards Up at Any Time in Year—Janesville Leads Many Cities—Record of Deaths and Births.

The health conditions for the year 1913 in this city have been about the best on record, according to the present health officer, Dr. S. B. Buckmaster. "I have seen nothing like it, in noting the average per month of contagious diseases, which has been only four and a fraction," says Dr. Buckmaster, who is very well pleased at the showing made in this city during the past twelve months.

About fifty-five cards have been placed during the year, and the month of August has the record for not having had one card placed for any one contagious disease.

A good share of the cases of con-

DR. S. B. BUCKMASTER, Health Officer.

tagious diseases already mentioned by number, which have visited the city were imported from some neighboring town by travelers or by people visiting here. At the time every disease has been first heard of a card has been placed and fumigation taken place, until the disease was entirely gone.

With 2,600 students in the city schools and to have but one case throughout the past four months, is something for this city to be proud of. This disease was chickenpox in a light form and the patient was a high school student.

In Wisconsin, according to the present report from the state board of health, as many as 2,000 cases of smallpox prevail. Out of that number Janesville has not one. Reports from neighboring cities even smaller than Janesville show many cases of contagious diseases. This city should be proud to hold such a record, which is something new in city health figures throughout the state for a city of 15,000 inhabitants.

At the present day Dr. Buckmaster reports but three cases of contagious diseases in the city. Two are scarlet fever, one measles. The latter card for the measles is about ready to come down, which will leave but two cases in a light form to start the new year with.

The year 1913 in this city has a record which is on the decline over past years for the rate of births and deaths, taken place. The total number of births is 277, to 285 for the year 1912. The death total reaches but 212 this year, while 245 passed away last year. This shows an increase in population of 65 this year, to that of 40 in 1912.

The race suicide has taken a drop during the past year. This is due largely to the health conditions which have been favored by the aid of the visiting nurse, and the fumigation to prevent all contagion.

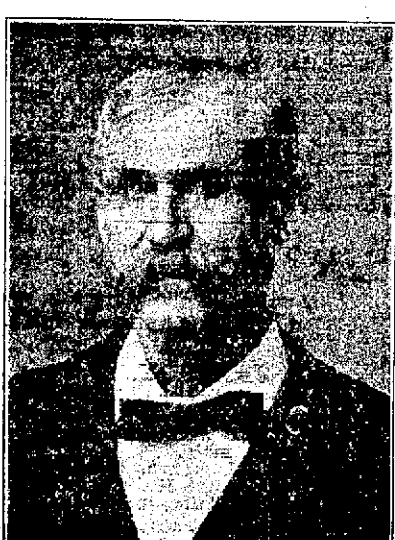

The births and deaths are listed below in the order in which they occurred during the year 1913. In listing the births, the date is first given, followed by the parents' name and the sex of the child. The date, name of deceased and place of interment is the order in which the deaths are recorded.

FRATERNAL ORGANIZATIONS OF

Various Societies Not Only exert Efforts to Benefit Members, but Seek to Serve the Entire Community.

Janesville is well equipped with fraternal organizations which offer social, intellectual and moral benefits to their members and which are vitally concerned with the welfare and progress of the whole community. Practically every lodge and society is in a flourishing condition, enjoying the influence and distinction which comes from large and enthusiastic memberships and from well organized orders imbued with a definiteness of purpose.

The orders seek to benefit and improve their members and in doing this they serve as great factors in the city's forward movement. But in addition practically every lodge has at least once a year some public-spirited project which it fosters for the good of the whole community. Notably along this line is the organization of the Moose band, with its public concerts; the St. Patrick's day entertainment of the Hibernians; the mission service under the auspices of the Knights of Columbus; the annual convention of the Commercial Travelers; the Burns entertainment of the Caledonians; the minstrel show of the Lakota club, and similar affairs of which there are a great many each year.

Following is given briefly a review of the various organizations to which the city as well as many of the individual citizens are indebted for much in the way of inspiration and uplift: Masonic Lodges.

A few days ago the secretary of Janesville Chapter No. 8, R. A. M., received a communication from Geo. F. Peabody of Clearwater, Fla., enclosing a copy of a speech delivered here over forty years ago by C. C. Cheney, in presenting a jewel to C. Loftus

Martin. This paper came into the hands of Mr. Peabody while residing in Pasadena, Cal., some twenty-five years ago, where Mr. Cheney died, a very old man, far from any of his own kindred. Thus, after a lapse of over forty years and a journey across the continent and back, this interesting paper has returned to the chapter where it was originally delivered. Mr.

Noble Grand, I. O. O. F., No. 14.

Cheney, now forgotten, except by the older members of the fraternity, was a most active worker in the Masonic bodies. His name appears as one of the three principal officers of Janesville Commandery No. 2 when it received its charter from the Grand of grand commander of the state. This is the second time this high office has fallen to a Janesville Templar. Theo. T. Goldin having served in that capacity in the year 1889. Mr. Matheson has also served his Masonic brethren as grand master of the grand lodge of Wisconsin.

events of the year was the revival of the old Gebald council, Royal and Select Masters. Gebald council received its charter from the grand council of the state of Ohio in 1857. After many years, labor ceased in the council. While this is not a required part of Wisconsin Masonry, it is fortunate that Janesville Masons

Master of the United States in 1856, and also occupied a prominent place in the early records of the other Masonic organizations.

Had Mr. Cheney himself been able to return to the scene of his early labors, instead of the work of his aged hands, he would be able to make some mighty interesting comparisons. He would realize as the present generation cannot possibly do the great progress that has been made since he passed on to that undiscovered country from whose bourne no traveler returns. The humble beginnings at which he so industriously worked have grown and increased a hundred fold. A membership that was once small and scattered is now numbered by hundreds. The order is now in excellent financial condition and owns property valued at thousands of dollars, and its efficiency and power as a moral force in the community, its ability to dispense charity and hospitality has increased accordingly.

Janesville has now become an important factor in Wisconsin Masonry. This year the Knights Templar of this city have been signally honored by having their esteemed companion, A. E. Matheson, elected to the office can again have these beautiful degrees conferred in their own city.

The Masonic bodies of Janesville meet as follows:

Western Star Lodge No. 14, Fred Palmer, W. M., first and third Tuesdays of each month.

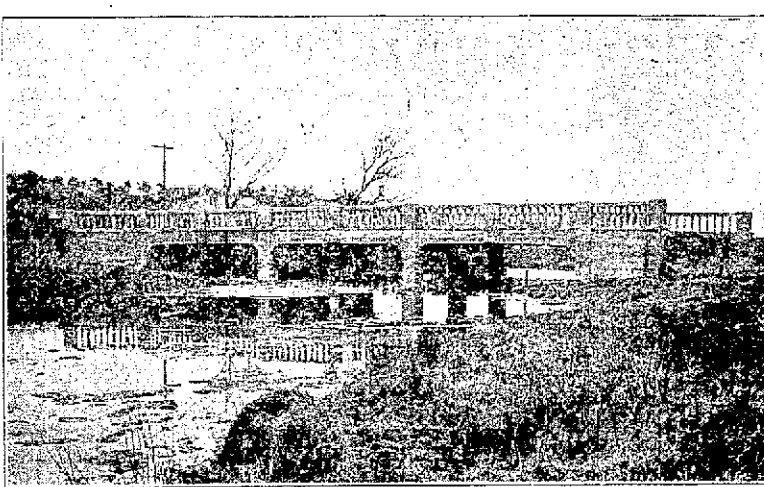

Janesville Chapter No. 5, R. A. M., O. H. Olson, E. H. P., first and third Thursdays of each month.

Janesville Commandery No. 2, K. T., L. E. Bookout, commander, second and fourth Thursdays of each month.

Gebald Council Royal and Select Masters, H. A. Griffey, T. I. M., first Monday of each month.

Janesville Chapter No. 5, O. E. S., J. W. Peters, W. P. M., E. G. Lowrey, W. M., second and fourth Wednesdays of each month.

I. O. O. F. No. 90, Janesville City Lodge No. 90, Independent Order of Odd Fellows, was instituted July 10, 1855. The charter members were S. H. Marquette, A. O. Francis, J. McArthur, Charles E. Church and M. H. Butler. The first meetings were held in Lappin's block, now known as the Hazen block, corner Main and Milwaukee streets. During the years of the rebellion the call to arms depleted the membership and caused the lodge to discontinue its meetings, but without giving up its

the all too prevalent evils of drunkenness and vagrancy," declared Municipal Judge Harry L. Maxfield, when asked for a statement which would give his attitude toward such problems as they exist since his appointment to the local court. The commitment act was passed by the 1913 legislature and went into effect July 15.

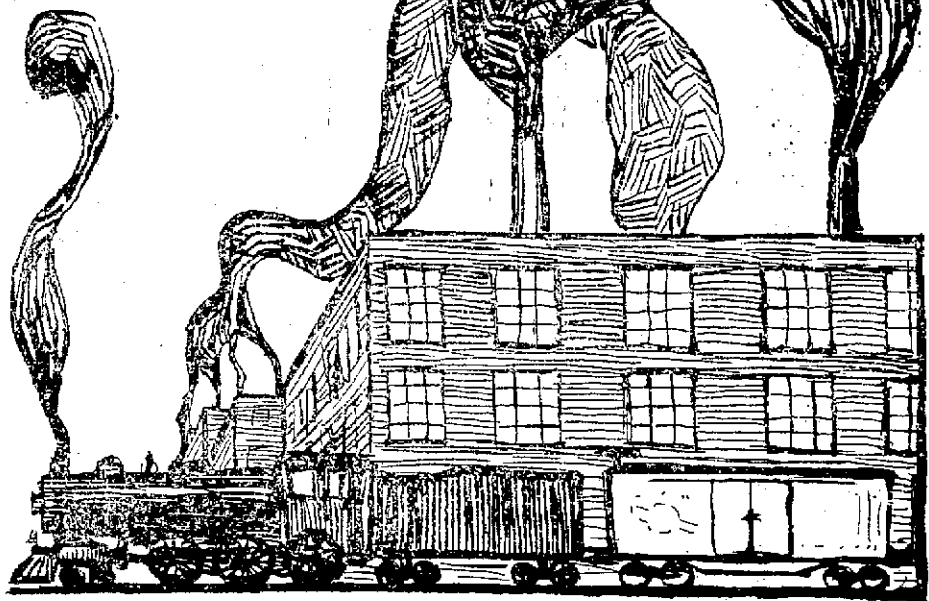

Judge Maxfield made it clear from the beginning that the new law, if it had any good in it at all, would be given a thorough trial in his court. Going on the theory contained in the law, that it is much better to give men who are afflicted with the weakness of the drink habit a long jail sentence under which they can work out their term without the temptation which the possession of money would offer, he has used his discretion to the benefit of the men themselves, their families and the city in general.

"I am sometimes confronted with the proposition that a commitment under this chapter is no punishment whatsoever to an offender," said

WORKING AS A UNIT

One Object in View, That of Making Janesville the Best City in the State.

"O wad some power the giftie gie us To see ourselves as other see us, It wad frae mair a blunder free us And foolish notion."

—Robert Burns.

Dear old Bobbie Burns has expressed a wish that comes to us all. Could we but lift the veil of the future and look behind the screen to see what fate has in store for us. Could we but picture the rosy glowing years to come for this community would we be content and happy to go on with our daily struggle or would we put our shoulder to the wheel more firmly and by our united efforts aid in the great work.

Dame Nature was proficant when it endowed this section of the state with its natural advantages. Added by man, the land has prospered, cities have sprung up, the whirl of the wheels of industry are heard, the fertile soil brings forth its crops in abundance and man goes to all parts of the civilized globe.

Rock county is one of the garden spots of the middle west. Its wonderful scenery, its magnificent drives, its delightful river, were richly endowed by the Creator. Rails of iron connect it with the north, east and west, by steam and electric lines, with Janesville as the center of this wonderful wheel of commerce. On the main line of the Chicago & North Western and the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul railroads, with their various divisions reaching to all parts of the state and into Northern Illinois, and with the Rockford Interurban running its cars across the state line and thence into the very heart of Chicago. With electric roads in contemplation towards Watertown, through Milton and Fort Atkinson, to join the line already built to Milwaukee and to Madison, Janesville is the center of the system now in process of construction towards Portage, the passenger and shipping facilities are unexcelled.

Within but a few hours ride to Chicago, an equal distance from Milwaukee, a short trip to St. Paul and Minneapolis, with one hundred and ten passenger trains arriving and departing from the local depots each day, with interurban cars every hour and half hour service when needed to handle the crowds and an improved local street car line, Janesville offers unusual service to the public.

According to the government statistics Janesville has a population of 14,000 covers an area of eight square miles, has a water supply that comes from artesian wells and supplies one million gallons a day. Labor disturbances are unknown and the ten miles of river stretch over delightful outings for the tired and weary. It has water power and electric power. It has the largest retail stores in a radius of fifty to a hundred miles and is the center of a million dollar tobacco belt that sends its products to all the big eastern markets.

There are ten graded schools, with twenty-five hundred pupils in attendance. The high school is one of the best equipped in the state and prepares its students directly for the larger universities and colleges. Parochial schools are in operation and a large business college offers additional educational advantages. Eleven churches raise their spires toward heaven and the newly remodeled Y. M. C. A. building is one of the best in the middle west.

Four banks and a trust company care for the city's finances, its post office does a business of fifty-eight thousand dollars yearly and four beautiful city parks offer breathing spots to the workers and travelers. During the past year two playgrounds have been equipped and maintained for the children of the city and next year, 1914 will see several more in operation. They have proven most successful and enjoyed by the children as well as being instructive.

There is a spirit of determination on the part of citizens of Janesville to make this city one of the largest in Southern Wisconsin. Two organizations working with this end in view have members taken from all walks in life. The Commercial Club, of which are: James Fifield, president, George S. Parker, vice president, H. H. Bliss, secretary and T. O. Howe, treasurer. The other members of the board of directors are H. L. McNamara, Amos Rehberg, Louis Levy, Joseph Connors, Carl Buchholz, Edward Amerphohl, Andrew Gibbons and A. P. Lovejoy. All of these men have made statesmen of the work of their organization below which should prove their interest in Janesville and its future prosperity.

James Fifield, president of the Commercial club, briefly reviews the advantages derived for the city by this organization this past year. He says: "To my mind the most important thing accomplished through the Commercial club this past year was the credit rating of the city. A bureau established through the retail department of the club. This should be a benefit not only to the merchant, but to the public generally, who have heretofore suffered on account of the class (who are comparatively small) who willfully neglect their accounts. Janesville is in a remarkably strong position. At the present time when cities which have large factories are suffering somewhat from an industrial depression our factories are running full time and there are very few unemployed. While we are sometimes accused of being over-conservative, I think we must all admit that at times conservatism is a very strong asset."

F. E. Lane, secretary of the Commercial club, says: "The growth and development of the city depends principally upon two important factors. First, the natural advantages, and in this respect Janesville has been well taken care of. Located as we are on the trunk lines of two railroads, with excellent interurban facilities, prospects of another road, steam being built from the south, of electric connection with the north, it is like the center of a spider web in the railroad world, with lines reaching out in all directions. Seventy-eight going factories produce annually eight million dollars worth of products, and aside from that we have the tobacco warehouses that annually handle millions of dollars worth of leaf tobacco that is shipped to the big eastern markets. Not only have we the railroads, the Chicago and Northwestern system, with its main lines running to the north and northwest, but also the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul road, with its network of lines running east, west north and south, and the Rockford Interurban with connections from Janesville through Chicago, but also the United States government plans to make a deep waterway route between this city and the Mississippi, which when completed will add materially in our transport advantages. Janesville is located in the center of one of the greatest agricultural sections of the state of Wisconsin, or even of the United States. Its diversified crops, its abundant yields and the ready markets have made Janesville the geographical center, the real shopping center of this vast territory. The local merchants have been awake to the situation and through the efforts of the Commercial club combination sales have been held during the past year, advertised by booster trips that have brought thousands of purchasers to the city. It is a well known fact that the Janesville shops carry enormous stocks, offering a large selection to the possible purchaser. While we have catered to the purchaser, it is time we see to it that we have a market for the producer. There is no reason in my mind why the corn, barley, potatoes, hogs, fat cattle, in fact every agricultural product of the community, could not be marketed to advantage here in Janesville. As to our educational advantages there is no city in the state that offers better advantages. We have excellent public schools, good parochial schools, an excellent high school, and in this connection churches of many denominations with able pastors. Our water supply is unsurpassed; we have a fine system of sewage and drainage, public parks and streets increasing each year. These comprise the natural advantages I spoke of. Next we must consider our citizenship. This should represent initiative and energy and courage to meet any obstacle. When the citizens of Janesville realize the actual necessity of co-operation in public affairs the quicker can we show results in the line of general betterment and welfare of the city. In my mind the best way to bring about this desired effect is to have every citizen affiliate with the Commercial club, give it not only his moral and financial support, but his representative support as well, and thus take an active interest in the city and its welfare. The Janesville Commercial club has one hundred and thirty-seven members. In a city the size of Janesville it should have at least five hundred, and this number will see to it that we are no other cities of the same size. The club has a board of directors comprising fifteen directors, each acting as chairman of a certain committee, and in addition all these members are specially interested in the club. Let us all get together and boost Janesville. Make Janesville the best city in Southern Wisconsin, and by so doing forget any selfish motive we may have and work in unison."

F. E. LANE, Secretary.

George S. Parker said: "Some cities count greatness by merely counting heads. Population is a good thing to have but when this is the predominant factor it is well to consider other advantages. Janesville, in my opinion, is the best city in Wisconsin, and by so doing forget any selfish motive we may have and work in unison."

things in life that make it worth living. The city that furnishes its citizens with the best streets, the best sidewalks, the best churches, the best schools, the best theaters, the best of stores, the best bunch of loyal boosters to be found anywhere, the opportunity of having within its borders manufacturing institutions that are solid financially, conservatively managed and giving employment the entire year around; banks that are managed by conservative and wide-awake business men and whose banks show the prosperity of the city in the abundant deposits—these and many other things in my judgment show that Janesville is steadily advancing in population. A city that can go through panic after panic and hardly know that a panic exists, except by newspaper reports, must be on a pretty solid foundation and yet this has been the history of Janesville during the past two money panics. Every man, woman and child living in the city of Janesville ought to congratulate themselves that their lines are drawn in such pleasant places. Here is a city where there are none very rich and none very poor and where every man as long as he obeys the law is just as good a fellow as his neighbor. The splendid spirit of boost that has been shown in Janesville for the last year or two has something to do with the friendly atmosphere that impresses strangers who come to the city. It is a fact that nothing ahead for Janesville except good and if we are all of the same opinion nothing but good will happen."

C. A. Hucholz says: "An great many of the citizens have an idea that the Commercial club of Janesville was organized for the purpose of getting new industries for the city, and because we had a secretary who was devoting his entire time to this organization we should have had many new ones by this time. But this is not the sole purpose of the organization, the main idea is to create a local pride in the minds of all, so that when we speak of Janesville we speak of it as if we were proud to be its citizens and not as if we regretted living here. When this one idea is firmly established, which can only be done by a harmonious working together of all interests, we will soon see the development of a bigger and better Janesville."

A. P. Lovejoy says: "The scope of work that the civic committee of the Janesville Commercial club might do has never been definitely defined, and its activities during the year have been very few. In the past it has investigated matters pertaining to city lighting, paving and beautifying, and instruction; and has endeavored to help the proper authorities work out some of their problems along these lines. As opportunity offers the committee stands ready to do its share to boost Janesville."

H. L. McNamara is a member of both the board of directors of the Commercial and the Twenty-five Thousand Club, and takes for his topic civic government. He says:

"Good civic government is and must be non-partisan. Politics ought not to play any more part in the management of the city's business than they do in the management of a well operated railroad. Theories of government are not related in any way to the disbursement of the people's money, for the most important duty imposed upon the officers of a city is the spending of money. They have little discretion in securing funds for the city, the greater part is received from direct taxes on property, but wide discretion in the expenditure."

The amount of tax is determined by the expenditures, as the revenue must equal the same; hence, the most efficient civic government is that which secures a dollar's worth of work or value for every dollar expended. This cannot be accomplished when contracts are awarded or position given in consideration of political support with the question of qualification as secondary matter. "At the present time it seems that our state has departed from the above principles. A vote commission form of government is all right, and many of the commissions have an object worthy of support, it seems to have run wide of the mark at Madison and tax payers are asking, 'What better are we with the increased taxes than under a more democratic form of government?' It seems that no community at present is able to judge what is best for their judges. Madison must go to Madison, and with hat in hand bow down to the powers that be. It appears to me that the time is about ripe to call a halt in this matter."

Amos Rehberg says: "It is surprising the number of manufacturing into any community which will furnish money for stock or subscribe money for a bonus, and after the searchlight of investigation has been thrown upon them reveal a condition which prohibits further interest on the part of the investigators. The condition outlined here is about what the industrial committee of the Commercial club has been up against the past year. No less than fifteen concerns have sought admission to our community and each has been investigated carefully with the result of an adverse report by the committee. Some and most of them were heavily involved financially and would not pay their debts. American industries were not what is known as going concerns; had no staple or standard established article for manufacture, and were unsafe. The people of Janesville have pledged from $20,000 to $70,000 for new industries as the occasion demanded, thus showing that when any seemingly worthy proposition was offered the industrial committee experienced no difficulty in raising the necessary funds. The past year, while it has not been large in point of new industries, has demonstrated a unified feeling among the citizens, which is a most hopeful sign of Janesville's advancement. Every body is ready to do his part for a bigger Janesville and we have every reason to believe that the coming year will be one of the greatest in the city's history on a sound basis. Some have enlarged their facilities the past year; others contemplate additions to their plants the coming year. A careful survey of the industrial situation of the city and at the suggestion of several of our present institutions to increase their output by giving them financial aid, there is opportunity to develop new industries in our own city among our own people."

Louis C. Levy, chairman of the retail division of the Janesville Commercial club, is pleased to say we have accomplished by true co-operation the first step towards a solution of securing better conditions to the trade. The custom has in a degree been solved by the elimination of waste by reducing loss and by solving the problems of giving the buying public increased efficiency. Retailers and the public always have been keen parties. True co-operation has been employed to secure perfect understanding and consideration of the one for the other. Janesville as a retail center always had the reputation of being the most progressive city in Southern Wisconsin. With its many advantages, its up-to-date stores and over a million dollars worth of merchandise to select from, we can faithfully say that Janesville is the best trading center in Southern Wisconsin."

Edward Amerphohl, chairman of the lighting committee, says: "As chairman of the lighting committee I will say that not much has been accomplished during the past year, but that the meeting with the mayor and council and the directors of the Commercial club will be beneficial in securing the ornamental post lighting system in the downtown district which will greatly add to the appearance of our city. I believe the Commercial Club has accomplished a great deal for Janesville and is fortunate in having

ing so capable a secretary. I believe that one of the chief things the club has done is to have kept the public from investing their money in worthless enterprises, and that when the club will eventually recommend a worthy project the public will have confidence and help support it."

H. H. Bliss says: "The publicity department of the Commercial club has accomplished as much during the past year as their limited funds would permit. While but a small amount of literature has been distributed still that which has been put out has created a good impression and the indirect results will be beneficial later. The Club needs the assistance of the manufacturers and large retailers in making use of the handsome illustrated Janesville folders as envelope folders in their outgoing mail. A supply of these can be secured from Secy. F. E. Lane and it is the hope of the committee that a call will be made for them at once. Manufacturer has made double use of the 8 page folder in question. On the first two pages he has had printed his own advertising material and the balance of 6 pages are filled with the illustrations and facts about Janesville. It seems to me that many of our citizens could put the Janesville folder to good use if they will send them to friends who may be interested or connected with manufacturing concerns, or who may be contemplating changing their residence. Every person whom we can interest in the city is worth going after and every citizen of Janesville can do his share in the work. I suggest that the citizens generally ask Secy. F. E. Lane for these folders, office 4th floor Jackson building."

The various activities of the city have been given as much outside publicity as possible and reports of many the event have found their way into numerous outside newspapers; this has helped the city. I hope to see all arrangements made for some active publicity for coming year. We have much to offer the manufacturer or home seeker. H. H. Bliss, Chairman Advertising Committee.

Thomas O. Howe says: "The Commercial club have in their office a set of freight tariff records for the use of the members of the Club and also those interested in the transportation of freight and we are of the impression that this collection of records, if consulted, is of great value to the shippers."

The traffic department of any business, from the nature of the same, must necessarily be on detail and our Mr. Lane receives from the tariff bureau notices of any change in rate on all commodities; and those in which we are interested have his immediate attention and the advising shipper is notified immediately. If there is any disadvantage in having this change take place, there is always a hearing given the traffic department and if possible the old rate and conditions remain as before."

Then, again, all expense bills paid by the receivers of freight may be audited by our Commercial club; and any overcharges are rectified through our Commercial club. All those who are interested in transportation can greatly assist themselves and our Commercial club by having their expense bills audited so that the Club may know where the overcharges exist."

F. H. Jackman, chairman of the legislative committee of which I am the Chairman has not been called upon this past year to undertake any work of importance. The special committee which was appointed to endeavor to get an appropriation through the County Board for a County Farm superintendent, of which I was a member, was unsuccessful, but we hope it seed soon will bring future good results."

It is necessary to get an appropriation of 1,000.00 from the County Board when the State will appropriate another $1,000.00, and the Commercial club agreed to raise the third $1,000.00. The matter was placed before the Board very effectively by W. H. Dougherty, Prof. West of the High School, and Mr. Craig of the Janesville Machine Company, and had not the minds of our County legislators been made up to oppose any appropriations we feel that they would have been convinced."

The business of the proposed farm expert is simply to do his best by advice and example to aid such farmers as will listen, to better farming methods and more scientific practices. I feel that the proposal was put before the County Board in a very creditable manner, and that the Commercial club made a very liberal offer, and did all that could be expected of them for the farmers of Rock county."

Joseph Connors, chairman of the Membership Committee with the entire Board of Directors as members, and the membership has been increased constantly during the year, a total of 53 members have been added and 10 names have been dropped from the list. With the increased membership I look for more action and increased activity for the coming year. Of course, every member must bear in mind that to have a successful organization it is necessary for each individual member to take an active interest and cooperate to the fullest extent. The Twenty Five Thousand Club. The officers of the Twenty Five Thousand Club are Frank P. Croak, president; M. P. Richardson, vice president; J. W. James Fifield is president, is the older of the two and composed of manufacturers, shippers, retail merchants and business men generally. The second organization, "The Twenty Five Thousand Club," has for its president Frank P. Croak and in its list of members count many hundreds of the cities most enthusiastic residents who want to do all in their power to make Janesville bigger and better.

These two organizations really work hand in hand for the city's betterment, interests, although distinctly separate. With their co-operation it should be possible to add to the population, to increase the number of factories and the dream of 1914 come true.

Our 1913 Year Book of 365 Pages is About to Close

What is to be done with the book? Shall we turn the last leaf and lay it aside, or shall we review it, page by page, carefully, and try to find out our mistakes of the past year. Have we lost money, or made money in the year 1913? Is this the important question to ask ourselves? What about our manhood, have we stood for the right? Have we done unto others as we wish them to do unto us? Or have we done others, before they done us? Are we building on the rock that will stand for ages, or are we building on the sands of time and decay? Tonight at 12 o'clock we close the book of 1913, we count our blessings, and forget the past. The year 1914 we will welcome in with joy and cheer, and will wish you all a Happy, Happy New Year.

behalf of the city's interest and sees the future with an optimistic eye. However he issues a word of warning to those who expect the city to go ahead by leaps and bounds and suggests that snap judgment on industries that want to come to the city be laid aside until a more sober consideration of the corporations be taken. Mr. Croak says:

M. P. RICHARDSON.

been numerous propositions presented for our consideration that on the surface looked like winners. We have carefully investigated every proposition suggested and while we have not as yet located any large factory in Janesville, we have not wasted the money of the members of the club in wild cat schemes that were promoted merely to make the present owners some extra money. No proposition that has been presented has not been given most careful consideration and an investigation that brought out all the defects or advantages fully discussed before the board of directors. We, members of the board of directors, are working with the best interests of the city in mind and feeling in this way we have taken precautions to guard the interests of the citizens generally.

"There are plenty of manufacturing industries that would like to get out of the cities and come to Janesville, which on the surface look to be winners. Investigations however show that it would cost considerable money to move them here and the question as to whether the returns to the stock subscribers we would have to ask for would be sufficient to make the effort has brought about careful investigation of the finances. Consequently we have moved cautiously and as a consequence we have not endorsed any one concern, feeling that it would be better to obtain one good live industry than a half dozen half dead ones which we would have to build up before they would be really paying ventures.

"The Twenty Five Thousand club was organized by men who want to see Janesville prosper. We are all boosters but there is such a thing as doing the wrong sort of boosting and we mean to avoid this if possible. Every member of the board of directors feel as I do. I am certain and as certain we will be better able to handle some big proposition when it presents itself than if we had solicited stock subscriptions for a lot of smaller affairs that are not worth the powder to blow them up. I am confident over the future of Janesville and confident that the citizens are behind the movement to make Janesville bigger and better and in time we will be able to do so."

Mr. Croak expresses the opinion of many citizens. He has studied the matter from a practical standpoint. He stands at the head of an organization that means to aid in the development of the city. He is a member of the board of directors elected by the members of the organization that mean to make Janesville a metropolis if possible. In this they have the support of the citizens generally.

Opinions of the other directors of this organization follow:

M. P. Richardson, Vice President, says:

J. W. VAN BEYNUM, Sec.

The beginning of the new year naturally raises two questions regarding the Booster club of Janesville.

First: What has it done during the year 1913?

Second: What can it accomplish during the coming year?

The achievements of the Booster club are somewhat like those of the Roosevelt administration. They consist mostly of the impetus given to many progressive movements and the moral backing and enthusiasm which the club has furnished to those desirous of improving our city, advancing its growth and prosperity. But for particular instances, I would refer to the work done to locate the State fair in the city of Janesville and to get the Peabody company here. The work done in making Janesville for the State fair, while it did not achieve its direct object, placed the city on the map more conspicuously than it had ever been in modern times; and it was unquestionably the enthusiasm of the Booster club which caused the citizens to raise $75,000 to locate a factory here. What can the Booster club do for the city in the coming year? I will mention two things.

The prospects are good for the club to bring here one of the most successful and desirable factories in the state of Wisconsin. It can also do good work towards obtaining a Citizen's Park for excursionists and picnic parties.

J. W. Van Beynum, secretary of the organization says:

The Janesville, Wis., 25000 club was organized with a purpose of interesting all citizens of Janesville in the work of making our city larger and better. The idea of getting both rich and poor, high and low, working together is a good one but it seems to be a hard one to carry out. The Board of Directors consisting of 10 men have found it a difficult problem to solve and have done what they thought was for the best interests of all. While no new factories have been secured so far they are still after them and are in hopes of some time landing one that will be an addition to our city and a credit to the club. What the club needs is the united support of all its members and a pride in the city they call their home and not forgetting to be a Booster.

F. E. Green. F. E. Green says: The Janesville Twenty-Five Thousand club is bound to bring success to the city for it is a club that is of vital importance to every citizen. The directors of the club have aimed to represent the members in a business-like way, not investing their money in something that the directors themselves would not take stock in. With more experience, the Booster club will put Janesville on the map.

Thomas E. Welsh. Thomas E. Welsh says: Of course we are most optimistic over the future of Janesville. Why shouldn't we? Janesville is a good town to live in and the labor conditions here are most favorable for establishment of paying industries. We have good

power for furnishing them motive for running, excellent shipping facilities, finer railroad connections can not be found in any city in the country and the surrounding country is such that even the most pessimistic city resident would be delighted. I feel that the Twenty-Five Thousand club has met a long felt want and that in time, a very short time, results will be shown for the work of the directors of the past year, that will show that the confidence bestowed in them was not misplaced. The one grand proposition just now is for everyone to boost for Janesville. Merchants, business and professional men and all. Make inducements to bring strangers here and we will succeed.

THOS. E. WELSH

J. S. Smith. J. S. Smith says: In order for any city to reach a state of perfection, to grow where its facilities warrant, or to gain wide reputation in a commercial line, it is first necessary to obtain a unit of citizenship, one that is willing to heed to the demands of the laboring man in setting him a fair wage, and to allow the manufacturers freedom to extend their growth. In the past Janesville has been nearly divided by two walls, and it should be the highest purpose of this club to tear down this wall and unite separate factions to the one purpose that every loyal citizen should have in heart—to make Janesville bigger and better. To increase the population and wealth of the city is but one aim, and to my opinion the club should direct its attention to the remedying of what small evils that have proven a stumbling block to this city's rapid progress during the last few years. An unnatural growth is not what a city wants—one that will bring factories and laborers into this city and in case of hard times leave them stranded or in desperate circumstances; but the directors aim to find a stable increase that will be a source of pride to the citizens of this city."

Joseph L. Bostwick. Joseph L. Bostwick says: "It would not quite a different complexion on business generally if our wealthier people and some others not so well-to-do made loyalty to Janesville the rule and not the exception. Why go to another city when wanting to buy something really worth while, and perhaps some future time gladden the local merchant's heart by saying, 'Why, I didn't know you carried it.' But he has to carry it just so much longer. So many seem to think it is worth the candle just to say, 'It came from Chicago,' but the extra price paid many times would buy a beautiful candlestick. It might be a good thing for father to talk it over with mother once in a while and let the children listen."

Joseph A. Denning. "The Janesville Twenty-five Thousand club is a true democratic body, representing the city in a most far-reaching manner, the laborer having equal voice and rights with the business men and manufacturers, and the organization aims to give the needed voice of the laboring man in the betterment of Janesville. Janesville should show and while the aims of the Twenty-five Thousand club in increasing the population of this city seem large at present and almost impossible, it is not improbable. The directors aim to do all in their power, first to increase the population and business in this city, and second to improve this city from both a commercial and civic standpoint. With the winning of one victory, such as forcing the Interurban company to improve the Janesville Traction line, the club will receive such a boost that other favorable transactions for the city will be the natural result of the citizens of this city uniting and making known their demands through a body which the city as a whole backs."

L. J. Cronin. L. J. Cronin says: "Although I am just been elected a director of the Janesville Twenty-five Thousand club, I am by no means not in touch with what they have been doing the past year. I have attended all the meetings and have found them businesslike throughout. The directors have worked hard and have given the members in every day words satisfactory reports from all their inspections. The qualifications for a member of this club are small and

ing the year, was the acquisition of the state title in basketball by the team that the local high school has had the good fortune to be represented by. The victory came as a climax to three years efforts toward the winning of this coveted honor and the whole city appreciated the team's work to the fullest extent.

Starting with the best of the 1912 five, the high school team swept through teams in southern Wisconsin, winning every game with ease, doubling and tripling their opponent's scores, with a few exceptions. The team landed the first prize cup at the Beloit tournament by completely outclassing the representative teams and went to the state meet held at Appleton, with an unsurpassed record, and full of confidence.

Their invasion into northern territory was successful, defeating three of the strongest fives in the state and won final honors in the deciding game with the La Crosse team. Give them one big thing and watch Janesville grow. ## FIRE RECORD SHOWS TOTAL LOSS GROWING DURING LAST YEAR

DISASTROUS MILWAUKEE ST.
BRIDGE FIRE SWELLS FIRE
LOSS TOTAL.

EFFICIENCY ASSURED

Ninety-two Calls Received During Year With Estimated Loss of One Hundred and Thirty Thousand Dollars.

Despite the half million dollar loss by fire when the structures on the Milwaukee street bridge were swept away on election night, April 1, last, Janesville has been most fortunate in its fire losses for the past year. It should not perhaps be called fortunate, but owing to the good judgment of Fire Chief Klein and his efficient department, with sufficient water pressure to fight any blaze with equipment suitable for any ordinary emergency, Janesville is equipped to meet any conflagration that may arise.

This fact alone is an important one in the eyes of the prospective investor in Janesville and well worth considering. Despite the fact that the whole city has been threatened by fire in the past twelve months, that numerous blazes have originated been the work of an incendiary, was discovered shortly after 6 o'clock in the evening by Policeman Harry Smith and Night Watchman Dennis McKinley, which resulted in a loss aggregating between $300,000 and $500,000, it being the most disastrous fire that this city has ever suffered. Within two hours after the first smoke was discovered Archie Reid's dry goods store, Brown Bros. shoe store, Amos Rehberg's clothing and shoe store, the Olympia candy store and Miller & Schubert's cigar store lay a mass of smoldering ruins, and the buildings owned by Edward H. Carpenter, George G. Sutherland and the John Myers estate were destroyed.

Other stores in the vicinity suffered heavily from the flames and damage caused by water and removal of stock. The fire apparently started beneath the Reid store on the east end of the Milwaukee street bridge and before the first stream of water could be turned on the entire frontage of buildings on the bridge was a blazing mass, the flames communicating from one store to another in a manner that threatened to spread to stores across to the north side of the bridge and endanger the entire city.

The fire rained a wonderful headway, being kindled by the draft under the wooden bridge, and in a half hour the four stores were a roaring furnace, water seemingly having no effect on the spreading conflagration. When the rules upholding the store had been weakened the buildings crashed into the river, leaving nothing but a mass of twisted and smoldering ruins to remind people of the model stores that they were but a few hours before.

The fire department with all its services and equipment was rushed to the scene, and twelve teams of horses were deployed from the waterworks

The bridge fire was exceedingly spectacular, lurid flames mounting hundreds of feet into the air, showering sparks on all the neighboring structures, endangering the whole downtown retail district. When the gas main laid under the bridge broke green flames were seen to burst through the dense black smoke. The sky was so illuminated that pigeons and even wild geese flying at a distance were clearly outlined. Several explosions helped spread the flames and as the fire spread along the bridge fresh outbreaks marked the damaging progress.

The telephone lines were crippled for over a week, the west side of the ings was given at $57,628.76, and the amount of uninsured property that was destroyed by assessed value amounted to over $23,000; the total contents of the stores razed by the fire, it is estimated, at a figure over $75,000. The insurance that was paid on the buildings amounted to $18,346.38. This includes those which were damaged but were not destroyed. Over $10,000 was the total loss of the uninsured structural property, by assessment figures.

The insurance paid out for fire loss during the last year in this city amounts to $84,084.81, which represents all the conflagrations that the department was called to. At one

June 10—The Seagrave fire truck made its first fire run to the home of George Wise on South High street. Damage estimated at $5.60.

river being cut off for several days, because of the destroyed cables underneath the bridge. Seven sales containing valuable books and currency were buried beneath the tons of debris in the river, and it was at first thought impossible to save them. The Commercial club, however, engaged the services of diver Charles Gunderson, employed at the work at the railroad bridge, and within a fortnight after the fire had salvaged the sales from the river bottom. For a month after the fire Janesville men and boys equipped with grapple hooks, searched the river bottom as far down as the lower railroad bridge, recovering a great amount of salvage. The total amount of insurance that was paid on the contents of the building, which resulted in a loss of $1,100, the department received no call, the factory being equipped with its own apparatus. The following are the most important fires of the year:

VIEW OF WRECKAGE WHERE THE DIVER WAS WORKING.

and been extinguished by the local department that might have proved serious fire losses. Janesville still stands well to the fore in the list of cities in the state relative to this proposition.

Janesville is conceded to have one of the most thoroughly equipped fire departments in the state of Wisconsin, having three stations at favorable parts of the city, each one having access to various parts of the city and can protect the entire district with short runs. At present there are employed twenty-two men in the department, fifteen of them being paid—the remaining seven being call men. The equipment consists of a high powered automatic truck, with twenty-two foot extension ladder; a fifty-gallon chemical tank with two hundred feet of hose. The truck has proved of the greatest value to the department, being able to arrive at the scenes of conflagrations many minutes before the horse drawn vehicles. If the automobile service continues to be as successful during the remainder of the winter and the coming spring, it is expected that the second motor truck will be added, giving Janesville the best first protection of any city in the state. Fire Chief Klein has an automobile, which is equipped with a twenty-five gallon tank, with one hundred and fifty feet of hose. This with the hook and ladder wagon, with a sixty-foot aerial ladder, one hose wagon and two combination hook and ladder trucks with the first size pumping engine, consist of the equipment of the Janesville department.

According to Fire Chief Klein there

main, two of these being cut off to increase the pressure to a point where they were able to penetrate into the heart of the fire. The engine was first spotted on the Court street bridge, where it was thought the flames would spread because of the burning debris that was carried down the river.

When the grave danger was noticed of the fire jumping to the union on the west side, or through the medium of the bridge to the Jackson, or the embers being carried to the Hayes office building, the engine was put in service on the Milwaukee street bridge, where three loads of hose, supplied by the engine, were slung into a large turret nozzle hose which threw a solid stream one and three-quarters inches in diameter, which was capable of throwing over a thousand gallons of water per minute.

Not until all other resources were known to be exhausted was aid sought from other cities, the fire departments of which had been warned of the danger and were waiting orders to come, had their equipment loaded and ready to pull out. When Fire Chief Klein thought that the task was a hopeless one for the Janesville force to combat with word was sent to Madison and Rockford. The fire chiefs of these two cities loaded equipment on cars and started. The Rockford department sent ten of its best and most experienced men with an engine and a thousand feet of hose, which arrived before the Madison department, which was stopped on the road. The equipment was brought to this city on a flat car over the interurban line in the record time of one hour and twelve minutes. The Rockford fire fighters proved a large factor in checking the blaze and at the west end of the bridge helped stop the flames.

Chief Klein handled the situation in a most satisfactory manner, taking the various dangers under consideration at the first glance, and started to plan his attack by checking the flames at the fire wall of the Sutherland block. When the Miller & Schubert store went down it tipped, leaving a space for the flames to jump, and here the department stopped the conflagration.

During the fire all lights were ordered shut off, as there was grave danger of the heat melting the high tension wires and the wires dropping and killing firemen and pedestrians. This plunged the city into darkness and added confusion to those who did not know the cause. In order to give light for the firemen to work, several automobiles were run up to the end of the bridge and their powerful headlights turned upon the scene. Fire lines were established and the people kept back from the danger zone, no one being allowed on the bridge except the firemen. When the stores on the west end of the bridge were threatened, citizens formed lines to remove their goods to safety.

ward Koester home the auto truck crashed into a horse wagon, injuring eight persons and causing damage to the residence and furniture amounted to $264.

Nov. 11—Defective electric wiring started a blaze at the Rock River cotton mill, which caused $500 damage to the machinery.

have been nine-two alarms during the year and the estimate of fire loss during the year by insurance paid and assessed value is approximately $130,000. This record is the third largest in the history of the city, the largest being in 1867, when the famous Hyatt house was burned to the ground. The loss that year is recorded as being $175,000. In 1908, when the Marquette warehouse was destroyed, the loss was estimated at $162,000. The lowest rate during the city's history was in the year 1905, when the amount of loss was $1,281.78, and in 1906, recorded at $1,354.98.

The record books show that fire losses have been steadily on the increase, and the aim of the state authorities has been for investigations to be conducted by local fire chiefs in their own cities and to warn careless property owners of danger. In this manner it is hoped that there will be a great reduction in the fire loss of the state. At the present time Chief Klein has issued nearly five hundred warnings in this city and the result of the work is being watched with interest.

While there have been ninety-two alarms during the most recent year, the greater majority of these have been of a minor nature and little or no damage was suffered, there have been several serious conflagrations. On April 1, fire, thought to have

CLASSIFIED WANT AD?

Are you a pressed-for-time Mother with more work to be done daily than you can possibly find the time for? Do you often wish for a pair of extra hands?

Or, are you a woman with time hanging heavy on your hands? A woman who is willing and eager to do, but don't just happen to find anything for her hands to do?

The Want Ad Page will serve as an Alladin lamp to bring you people together—that is if you care to meet.

Would it be a poor plan for the woman with time to spare to insert a notice in her home paper to the effect that she will do children's sewing, mending; or that she will come in for a few hours each day and help the busy Mother? The woman who has too much work for one woman, still has not the income, or inclination to keep a maid?

Would it be a poor plan for the busy Mother to insert an Ad in her home paper to the effect that she would like to procure the services of a refined, cultured woman a few hours each day to aid her in her home work? The pay not to be exorbitant.

The women want to co-operate better. Use the Want Ad Columns, get in touch with one another. It will be mutual benefit. Try it!

"Yes," was the answer.
"Well, then, we've got to get busy."
Before he could add a direction he was halted by a soft buzzing from the telephone. For an instant he hesitated while the others regarded him doubtfully.

"We've got to take a chance," Garson went to the desk and put the receiver to his ear.

There came again the faint tapping of some one at the other end of the line, signalling a message in the Morse code. An expression of blank amazement, which grew in a flash to deep concern, showed on Garson's face as he listened tensely.

"Why, this is Mary calling," he muttered.

"Mary!" Griggs cried.
"Yes, she's on," Garson interpreted a moment later as the tapping ceased for a little. He translated in a loud whisper as the irregular ticking noise sounded again.

"I shall be there almost at once. I am sending this message from the drug store around the corner. Have some one open the door for me immediately."

"She's coming over!" Griggs cried incredulously.

"No, I'll stop her," Garson declared firmly.

But when after tapping a few words the forger paused for the reply no sound came.

"She don't answer!" he exclaimed.

"On her way already," Griggs suggested. "I'll let her in." He drew a small torch from the skirt pocket of his coat and crossed to the hall door as Garson nodded assent.

"God! Why did she have to come?" Garson muttered, filled with forebodings. "If anything should go wrong now!"

He turned back toward the door just as it opened, and Mary darted into the room, with Griggs following closely at her heels.

"What do you want here?" he demanded, with peremptory savageness in his voice, which was a tone he had never hitherto used in addressing her.

There was only tender pleading in Mary's voice, though her words were an arraignment.

"Joe, you lied to me!"

"That can be settled later!" the man snapped. His jaw was thrust forward obstinately, and his clear eyes sparkled defiantly.

"You are fools, all of you!" Mary cried. "Yes, fools! This is burglary. I can't protect you if you are caught. How can I? Oh, come!" She held out her hands pleadingly toward Garson, and her voice dropped to beseeching.

"Joe, you must get away from this house at once, all of you! Joe, make them go!"

"It's too late," was the stern answer. "We're here now, and we'll stay till the business is done."

"Joe, for my sake!"

"I can't quit now until we've got what we came here after," he declared roughly.

"Boys, let's get away! Please, oh, please! Joe, for God's sake!" Her tone was a sob.

"I'm going to see this through," said Garson doggedly.

With a gesture of despair she turned away toward the door by which she had entered.

"You can't go," Garson said sharply. "You might be caught."

"And if I were," Mary demanded in a flash of indignation, "do you think I'd tell?"

"Of course not, Mary. I know you. You would go up for life first. Just the same, you can't take any chances. We'll all get away in a minute, and you'll come with us." He turned to the men and spoke with swift authority.

"Come," he said to Dacey, "you get to the light switch there by the hall door. If you hear me snap my fingers, turn 'em off. Understand?"

With instant obedience the man went to his station by the hall door.

"Well, Garson ordered, 'you get to that door.' He pointed to the one that gave on the passageway against which he had set the chair tilted. As the man eyed Garson gave further instructions.

"If any one comes in that way get him and get him quick. You understand? Don't let him cry out or make a sound."

Chicago Red held up his huge hand, widely open.

"Not a chance," he declared proudly, "with that over his mug."

"Now, let's get to work," Garson continued eagerly.

Mary spoke with the bitterness of defeat.

"Listen, Joe! If you do this I'm through with you. I quit."

"If this goes through," he countered, "we'll all quit. That's why I'm doing it. I'm sick of the game."

"This is Mary calling," Garson muttered.

CHAPTER XIV.
The Noiseless Death.

RED suddenly made a slight hissing noise that arrested the attention of the others and held them in motionless silence.

"I hear something," he whispered. He went to the keyhole of the door leading into the passage. Then he whispered again, "and it's coming this way."

At the words Garson snapped his fingers. The room was plunged in darkness.

There was absolute silence in the library after the turning of the switch that brought darkness. Long seconds passed, then a little noise—the knob of the passage door turning. As the door swung open there came a gasping breath from Mary, for she saw framed in the faint light that came from the single burner in the corridor the slender form of her husband, Dick Gilder.

The next instant he had stepped within the room and Chicago Red had pounced on his victim, the huge hand clapped tight over the young man's mouth. There came a sound of scuffling feet, and that was all. Finally the big man's voice came triumphantly:

"I've got him!"

"It's Dick!" The cry came as a wall of despair from the girl.

At the same moment Garson flashed his torch, and the light fell swiftly on young Gilder, bowed to a kneeling posture before the couch, half throttled by Chicago Red. Close beside him, Mary looked down in wordless despair over this final disaster of the night.

Garson refused a step further before he spoke his command, so that, though he held the torch still, he, like the others, was in shadow.

"Get away, Red!"

The fellow let go his grip.

Freed of that strangling embrace, Dick stumbled blindly to his feet. Then, mechanically, his hand went to the lamp on the table back of the couch. When the mellow light streamed forth he uttered an ejaculation of stark amazement, for his gaze was riveted on the face of the woman he loved.

"Good God!" It was a cry of torture wrung from his soul of souls.

Mary swayed toward him a little, pliant with fear—fear for herself, for all of them, most of all for him.

"What, husband?" she panted warningly.

"Oh, Dick, you don't understand!"

"I understand this," he said brokenly at last. "Whether you ever did it before or not, this time you have broken the law." A sudden inspiration came to him.

"Make it quick, remember."

Dick spoke at once, with a hesitancy that betrayed the depth of his emotion.

"Don't you care for me at all?" he asked wistfully.

The girl's answer was uttered with nervous eagerness, which revealed her own stress of fear.

"No, no, no!" she exclaimed.

"I know you do, Mary," he asserted confidently; "a little anyway. Why, Mary, can't you see that you're throwing away everything that makes life worth while? Don't you see that?"

There was no word from the girl. Her breast was moving convulsively.

"Mary, Mary!" he cried. "You've got to change. Don't be so hard. Give the woman in you a chance."

The girl's form became rigid as she fought for self control.

"I am what I am," she said sharply.

"I can't change. Keep your promise, now, and let's get out of this."

"You can change," Dick went on impetuously. "Mary, haven't you ever wanted the things that other women have—shelter and care and the big things of life, the things worth while? They're all ready for you now, Mary. And what about me? After all, you've married me. Now, it's up to you to give me my chance to make good. I've never amounted to much. I've never tried much. I shall, now, if you will have it so, Mary—if you'll help me. I will come out all right, I know that; so do you, Mary. Only you must help me. I need you, and you need me. Come away with me."

"No, no! I married you not because I loved you, but to repay your father

over this final disaster of the night.

Garson refused a step further before he spoke his command, so that, though he held the torch still, he, like the others, was in shadow.

People with kidney ills want to be cured. When one suffers the tortures of an aching back, relief is eagerly sought for. There are many remedies today that relieve, but do not cure. Doan's Kidney Pills have brought lasting results to thousands. Here is Janesville evidence of their merit.

Mrs. Nels Thompson, 222 Park St., Janesville, Wis., says: "My kidneys bothered me quite a bit by acting irregularly. I had had attacks of backache. When I awoke, I had sharp pains through my back. At other times there were dull nagging pains in the small of my back. One of my acquaintances had used Doan's Kidney Pills, so I took them. They soon stopped the pain. I still take Doan's Kidney Pills once in awhile and they tone up my system. They have done so much for me that I want to let other kidney sufferers know about them."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

FEW wives and few children need or can care for the life insurance money left by the husband and the father. What they need most is an assured income, either for a limited number of years or for life, and the life insurance agent should call attention to this fact and show to his prospect how, under the policy he represents, the proceeds may be safeguarded and the interests of wife and children protected by providing that the proceeds of the policy may go to them as an assured income. We do not talk enough of this feature of our contracts nor do we enlarge sufficiently upon the necessity and benefit of providing dependents with an income. Few men can take enough insurance, the sum of which if invested—even if all danger from loss in investment could be eliminated—would provide a sufficient amount to meet the actual needs, but when properly presented most men can be convinced that they can carry a sufficient amount of monthly income insurance to make certain that the wife and mother is cared for and surely protected.

ACCORDING to the census of 1910 there were 3,167,232 widows in this country; 2,026,684 were between 15 and 64 years of age; 702,000 were below age 45. Can you picture the struggle of the thousands thrown on their own resources and fighting for an existence for themselves and children. How many of the 2,465,396 above the age of 45 are dependent upon relatives and the public for support? Among all these hundreds of thousands there is not one single inmate of a poor house, home for the aged or friendless who was provided with a monthly income under a life insurance policy. What a splendid opportunity right now to do missionary work to protect the future widows of this land.
